Mooney Ready To Leave Cell

20 Year Fight Through All Courts Of Land Nears End; Governor To Conduct Hearing, Grant Pardon

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Cal., Jan. 7—(INS)—"Goodbye, boys! It's farewell forever to San Quentin!"

With a broad smile and a warm handshake for everyone—convicts, guards and officials alike—56 year old Tom Mooney, America's most celebrated prisoner, today donned a civilian suit and awaited a trip to Sacramento where he is to receive a pardon promised him by Culbert L. Olson, California's new governor.

In the prison hospital, where he has been employed for months as an orderly, convict-patients kept shouting at Mooney:

"It won't be long now till you're free!"

The gray-haired Mooney—whose bitter 22 year old fight for freedom has been a cause celebre of labor throughout the world — had a cheerful reply for each inmate.

"After all these years, it's only a matter of a few minutes now before vindication and exoneration are mine!"

At Sacramento, Governor Olson waited for Warden Court Smith to bring Mooney before him for a formal pardon hearing. The governor has declared he believes Mooney is innocent.

Olson Determined

Governor Olson was determined to go ahead and grant the executive clemency, in spite of a last-minute protest by 75 year old Ben F. Lamborn, a former county clerk of Alameda county, whose brother was killed in the 1916 San Francisco Preparedness Day bombing outrage — the crime that sent Mooney and Warren K. Billings to prison.

Declaring that he had spent $10,000 investigating the parade bombing—which killed 10 persons and injured 40—and that he had ample evidence that Mooney and Billings were guilty, Lamborn threatened to make Olson's pardon for Mooney the "basis for an

OHIO'S PENSION ROLL TO CLIMB

Increase In Pickaway's Total Predicted To Be Nearly 60

COLUMBUS, Jan. 7—Administrator Ray Bevins of the Ohio Division of Aid for the Aged today had been authorized to suspend investigation of old age pensioners for the first quarter of 1939 in order that nearly 18,000 eligible, but unpensioned aged in Ohio, may be investigated for early certification as pensioners.

The move is expected to increase the pension payroll in Pickaway county from 766 to approximately 825.

"The federal bureau in charge of Social Security approved our request for dispensing with the first quarter audit because in addition to the 13,000 uninvestigated applicants already awaiting the attention of our field force, we now have an additional 3,000 names of aged persons who have been receiving W. P. A. funds and who are to be dropped from the W. P. A. rolls," Mr. Bevins said.

"Ordinarily our first quarter investigation would have required the entire services of our field staff during the months of February and March, and it would have been impossible to add those dropped from W. P. A. until possibly as late as the middle of April.

"Relieved of this routine, we will be able to begin immediately to take up these cases of pending applicants and those dropped from the W. P. A. rolls."

COUNTY SCHOOLS READY TO STUDY SAFETY PROGRAM

A committee to study methods of teaching safety in the county schools and instructed to make recommendations at the February meeting of county superintendents was appointed Saturday by G. D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools.

On the committee are R. H. Sponsler, Perry township; Brice Connell, Darby township, and Donald W. Codding, Muhlenberg township.

C. A. Higley, superintendent of Ashville school, reported receipts at the annual music festival at $65.70 and expenses of $26.65, leaving a profit of $39.05 to be applied toward the 1939 festival.

Superintendents decided that two referees would be used again this year for the county tournament to be held Feb. 17, 18, 23, 24 and 25.

Literature was distributed to superintendents for the observance of Temperance Day in the schools on Jan. 13.

WAR SECRETARY DECLARES NEED FOR GREAT ARMY

Larger Standing Force And Hugh National Guard, Reserve Corps Asked

FRONTIERS UNDERMANNED

Four Points Stressed By Leader Of Nation's Armed Units

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—(INS)—Secretary of War Harry Woodring today warned that America's outer defenses—the Panama Canal and Hawaii—are dangerously undermanned.

Broadly hinting at the probable contents of the special defense message President Roosevelt will send to congress next week, Woodring indicated for the first time that a call will be made for a greatly augmented standing army, national guard and reserve corps.

He described the present standing army of 180,000 officers and men as an irreducible minimum required for actual defense of the continental United States.

In the scheme of hemisphere defense envisioned by President Roosevelt, Woodring emphasized that a large army, as well as air force, is essential.

Four Factors Vital

The expanded national defense program indicated by Woodring, which will be provided under the chief executive's extraordinary $500,000,000 fund, is expected to include as its principal factors:

1. A greatly augmented air force.

2. Progressive increases of both officers and men in the regular army, national guard, officers and enlisted reserve corps.

3. Full, modern, mechanized and highspeed artillery and semi-automatic machine guns and small arms equipment, with an adequate war reserve, for the initial protective force.

4. Gearing of industry for overnight transition to manufacture of war needs.

Army Personnel Tested

The heavy requirement for a large army personnel, Woodring indicated, will come with expansion of the air corps and for protection of the string of air and naval bases planned for the nation's

MOVE LAUNCHED TO HALT WORK OF DIES COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—(INS)—A movement to stifle the Dies house un-American activities committee by shifting the whole question of Communist, Nazi and Fascist activities to the department of justice was launched among house members today.

The announcement by President Roosevelt that Attorney General Murphy will investigate alleged violations of criminal law cited by the Dies committee was seized on by foes of the committee as an argument for their proposal.

First house Democratic leader to announce preference for a department of justice investigation was Rep. Pat Boland, party whip. Thus far both Speaker Bankhead and Rep. Rayburn of Texas majority leader, have declined to commit themselves on requested continuation of the Dies committee for two years.

Czechs, Hungarians Send Troops to Border Area

BUDAPEST, Jan. 7—(INS)—While both sides were reported sending reinforcements to the frontier, and tension remained high, quiet prevailed on the Czech-Hungarian border today following the pitched battle at Munkacs.

The artillery, tank, and infantry fight on newly-acquired Hungarian territory was being investigated by a joint commission of Czechoslovak and Hungarian army general staff officers on the battleground.

At least 14 men were killed in the sudden miniature war, four Hungarian officers and five soldiers, and five Czechoslovakian soldiers, and many more were wounded.

Czechoslovakia has officially expressed "regret" over the Munkacs affair, yet each country persists in blaming the other for responsibility. Hungary also charges that Nazi German influence in the semi-autonomous eastern section of Czechoslovakia, Carpatho-Ruthenia, was partially responsible for the outbreak.

(Prague's version said Hungarian regular troops and "terrorists" started the fight, adding that three Hungarian army officers were taken prisoners within the Carpatho-Ukraine, several hundred yards beyond the new frontier.)

A Budapest communique gave this account: "Thursday night a Czech major appeared on the Czech frontier at the town of Toelcserfalu and issued order for the first battalion of Czech infantry, regiment No. 36, to attack Oroszveg and Munkacs (separated only by a bridge) early Friday morning.

"The first and second companies of the battalion were detailed to lead the attack. They were reinforced by a number of frontier guards, Czech policemen, and Czech customs officers. All were given Czech military uniforms.

"The attack was arranged to start following a rocket signal released atop a hill on Czech side."

Czech armored cars and tanks were captured on the Hungarian side of the line, it was asserted here, and even Czech quarters agreed that armored cars, tanks, and light artillery came into play in the conflict.

CREW, 12 ABOARD SHIP IN DANGER

Mountainous Seas Ground Motor Liner Off Tip Of Luzon

MANILA, P. I., Jan. 7—(INS)—Carrying twelve passengers, including six women and one child, the motorship Silver Crest smashed aground today off Montguar point, southern tip of Luzon island.

Helpless as heavy seas crashed over the stricken vessel, crew members valiently strove to land a life line on a nearby reef while rescuers were held back by mountainous waves.

With the ship a total loss and in danger of splitting in two, grave concern was felt for the crew and passengers.

Once the crew fired a line true to its mark on the reef, but it was impossible to attempt landing passengers.

Rescue tugs sped to the ship's aid from several ports and a shoreside rescue party, hiking overland, was expected to reach the scene of the wreck at nightfall.

Bound for Manila from San Francisco, the Silver Crest, a vessel of 9275 net tons, is owned by the Norwegian Silver Java line.

SNYDER APPEALS LONG SENTENCE TO PENITENTIARY

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 7—(INS)—Martin (Colonel Gimp) Snyder, former husband of Ruth Etting, the noted radio singer, sat in the county jail in Los Angeles today and bewailed his fate.

He was sentenced yesterday to San Quentin prison for a term "not exceeding 20 years" following his conviction on charges of attempting to murder Myrl S. Alderman, present husband of Miss Etting.

Denied a motion for a new trial, the colonel informed the court, through Attorney Jerry Giesler, that an appeal had been filed, which meant that he would not have to start immediately for the penitentiary.

He will probably remain in the county jail until action is taken on the appeal by the state appellate court.

"This," said the Gimp sadly, "is a very wrong break."

The exact sentence will be determined by the state board of prison terms and paroles after Snyder is incarcerated in San Quentin.

Snyder was found guilty of shooting Alderman in Hollywood last October 15. Alderman, who married Miss Etting during the midst of Snyder's trial, was seriously wounded, but recovered.

ELSEA CASE AT END AS $6,008 FINDING IS PAID

Final chapter in the suit of Mrs. Ruth Elsea, Washington township, against the Benedict Transportation Lines, Inc., of Columbus, was written Friday afternoon. Mrs. Elsea received $6,008.54 covering the judgement of $5,666 and interest.

Mrs. Elsea was awarded the judgment in the death of her husband, Asa in an auto-truck collision on Route 23, north of South Bloomfield, March 13, 1936. Mr. Elsea and John McCrady, both of Circleville, and Bernard Dowden, Wayne township, were killed in the accident.

The Common Pleas court judgment was affirmed by the district Court of Appeals and state Supreme court.

HITLER'S AIDE, GOEBBELS, GETS ABSENCE LEAVE

LONDON, Jan. 7—(INS)—The firm conviction of many European observers that Propaganda Minister Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels is on his way out of the Nazi ruling triumvirate received new impetus today with a report he will shortly take a six months "leave of absence."

This new development in the strange and recent series of events revolving about the sharp-tongued orator who has long directed the propaganda of Nazidom was reported from Berlin this morning by the London News Chronicle.

It followed by little more than a week a widely-circulated story that Dr. Goebbels had been severely beaten by friends of Lida Baarova, Czecheslovak film beauty who has long been a leading figure in German filmdom.

This incident, which allegedly sent Goebbels to a hospital, coupled with other affairs in which the limping propaganda potentate was said to have been involved, reputedly aroused the wrath of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler and decided the latter on the advisability of removing Goebbels from his high post.

UNION COUNTY SHERIFF FEARS MOB VIOLENCE

Names Of Suspects Kept Secret; Detective, State Highway Chief Aiding

MANY ANGLES CHECKED

Holdup Attempt Month Ago Recalled After Drowning Of Clerk, 28

MARYSVILLE, Jan. 7—(INS)—Aided by a special investigator from the Columbus detective bureau, Union county authorities delved deeper into the brutal murder of 28 year old Clark Hayes today and held three suspects in jail for further questioning.

Early last night, six men were rounded up near Sumersville, the village in which Hayes lived, and brought to Marysville.

Sgt. C. C. Cole, head of the Columbus police homicide squad, Col. Lynn Black of the state highway patrol, Sheriff Homer Roosa and Prosecutor William J. Porter, questioned the suspects, all farm hands.

Three of them, from one family, were released but the other three were held.

Identity Not Revealed

Roosa refused to give their names. The sheriff said feeling was running so high in Union county that he was fearful of mob violence if he announced the identity of suspects.

Clark, whose weighted body was found in a quarry five miles northwest of here, was well liked, Roosa said. He disappeared on Tuesday night. He was to have been married on Wednesday to Oletha Morrow, his 26 year old childhood sweetheart.

Roosa and his aides labored until early this morning, carefully checking all angles of the "most brutal murder in Union county for 40 years."

The sheriff was definitely convinced that robbery was the motive for Hayes' murder and he discarded the suicide theory still retained by many friends.

"We found out," the sheriff said, "that Hayes was held up near the quarry about a month ago, but foiled the robbers. He refused to take the advice of friends and carry a gun after that incident.

Although about $147.25 in cash and currency was found in his abandoned truck near the quarry, Hayes was waylaid with robbery as the motive, Roosa declared in reconstructing the scene.

"Whoever accosted Hayes was known to him," the sheriff continued. "Bruises on his knuckles indicated he must have put up a terrific fight and told his attackers that he would expose them. The latter statement probably led to his murder."

Bride To Be Absolved

It was learned that Roosa, after questioning Miss Morrow, had ab-

BETTY FISSELL SUFFERS CUTS IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Miss Betty Fissell, E. Mound street, narrowly escaped serious injury early Saturday when the car she was driving left Route 23, just north of Bell Siding, went into a ditch and overturned.

Miss Fissell suffered a cut lower lip and bruises. She was treated at Berger hospital by Dr. E. L. Montgomery, then taken to her home.

She was riding alone, driving southward on the highway. Officers said the car swerved to the west side of the road, then crossed to the east side, went into the ditch and upset. The car was demolished.

Czechs, Hungarians Send Troops to Border Area

BUDAPEST, Jan. 7—(INS)—While both sides were reported sending reinforcements to the frontier, and tension remained high, quiet prevailed on the Czech-Hungarian border today following the pitched battle at Munkacs.

The artillery, tank, and infantry fight on newly-acquired Hungarian territory was being investigated by a joint commission of Czechoslovak and Hungarian army general staff officers on the battleground.

At least 14 men were killed in the sudden miniature war, four Hungarian officers and five soldiers, and five Czechoslovakian soldiers, and many more were wounded.

Czechoslovakia has officially expressed "regret" over the Munkacs affair, yet each country persists in blaming the other for responsibility. Hungary also charges that Nazi German influence in the semi-autonomous eastern section of Czechoslovakia, Carpatho-Ruthenia, was partially responsible for the outbreak.

(Prague's version said Hungarian regular troops and "terrorists" started the fight, adding that three Hungarian army officers were taken prisoners within the Carpatho-Ukraine, several hundred yards beyond the new frontier.)

A Budapest communique gave this account: "Thursday night a Czech major appeared on the Czech frontier at the town of Toelcserfalu and issued order for the first battalion of Czech infantry, regiment No. 36, to attack Oroszveg and Munkacs (separated only by a bridge) early Friday morning.

"The first and second companies of the battalion were detailed to lead the attack. They were reinforced by a number of frontier guards, Czech policemen, and Czech customs officers. All were given Czech military uniforms.

"The attack was arranged to start following a rocket signal released atop a hill on Czech side."

Czech armored cars and tanks were captured on the Hungarian side of the line, it was asserted here, and even Czech quarters agreed that armored cars, tanks, and light artillery came into play in the conflict.

ELSEA CASE AT END AS $6,008 FINDING IS PAID

Final chapter in the suit of Mrs. Ruth Elsea, Washington township, against the Benedict Transportation Lines, Inc., of Columbus, was written Friday afternoon. Mrs. Elsea received $6,008.54 covering the judgement of $5,666 and interest.

Mrs. Elsea was awarded the judgment in the death of her husband, Asa in an auto-truck collision on Route 23, north of South Bloomfield, March 13, 1936. Mr. Elsea and John McCrady, both of Circleville, and Bernard Dowden, Wayne township, were killed in the accident.

The Common Pleas court judgment was affirmed by the district Court of Appeals and state Supreme court.

HITLER'S AIDE, GOEBBELS, GETS ABSENCE LEAVE

LONDON, Jan. 7—(INS)—The firm conviction of many European observers that Propaganda Minister Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels is on his way out of the Nazi ruling triumvirate received new impetus today with a report he will shortly take a six months "leave of absence."

This new development in the strange and recent series of events revolving about the sharp-tongued orator who has long directed the propaganda of Nazidom was reported from Berlin this morning by the London News Chronicle.

It followed by little more than a week a widely-circulated story that Dr. Goebbels had been severely beaten by friends of Lida Baarova, Czecheslovak film beauty who has long been a leading figure in German filmdom.

This incident, which allegedly sent Goebbels to a hospital, coupled with other affairs in which the limping propaganda potentate was said to have been involved, reputedly aroused the wrath of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler and decided the latter on the advisability of removing Goebbels from his high post.

NAZI CARTOONIST GIVES HIS IDEA OF F. D.'S ACT

BERLIN, Jan. 7—(INS)—The political cartoonist of the Berlin newspaper Nachtausgabe presented to German readers today his carefully-prepared opinion of President Roosevelt's appointment of Professor Felix Frankfurter as associate justice of the supreme court.

Headed "The President's Favorite Dish," the cartoon pictured Mr. Roosevelt in the uniform of a chef busily opening a can which bore the inscription: "Kosher Frankfurters."

CREW, 12 ABOARD SHIP IN DANGER

Mountainous Seas Ground Motor Liner Off Tip Of Luzon

MANILA, P. I., Jan. 7—(INS)—Carrying twelve passengers, including six women and one child, the motorship Silver Crest smashed aground today off Montguar point, southern tip of Luzon island.

Helpless as heavy seas crashed over the stricken vessel, crew members valiently strove to land a life line on a nearby reef while rescuers were held back by mountainous waves.

With the ship a total loss and in danger of splitting in two, grave concern was felt for the crew and passengers.

Once the crew fired a line true to its mark on the reef, but it was impossible to attempt landing passengers.

Rescue tugs sped to the ship's aid from several ports and a shoreside rescue party, hiking overland, was expected to reach the scene of the wreck at nightfall.

Bound for Manila from San Francisco, the Silver Crest, a vessel of 9275 net tons, is owned by the Norwegian Silver Java line.

SNYDER APPEALS LONG SENTENCE TO PENITENTIARY

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 7—(INS)—Martin (Colonel Gimp) Snyder, former husband of Ruth Etting, the noted radio singer, sat in the county jail in Los Angeles today and bewailed his fate.

He was sentenced yesterday to San Quentin prison for a term "not exceeding 20 years" following his conviction on charges of attempting to murder Myrl S. Alderman, present husband of Miss Etting.

Denied a motion for a new trial, the colonel informed the court, through Attorney Jerry Giesler, that an appeal had been filed, which meant that he would not have to start immediately for the penitentiary.

He will probably remain in the county jail until action is taken on the appeal by the state appellate court.

"This," said the Gimp sadly, "is a very wrong break."

The exact sentence will be determined by the state board of prison terms and paroles after Snyder is incarcerated in San Quentin.

Snyder was found guilty of shooting Alderman in Hollywood last October 15. Alderman, who married Miss Etting during the midst of Snyder's trial, was seriously wounded, but recovered.

EIGHT PORKERS STOLEN, TWO OTHERS SMOTHERED

Theft of eight hogs and smothering of two others was reported to the sheriff's department Friday afternoon by John Dunlap, Jr., of Williamsport.

The eight hogs stolen were Hampshires weighing between 70 and 80 pounds. They were stolen from the H. E. Arnold farm, north of New Holland, managed by Mr. Dunlap. Two hogs were smothered when a hog box door was closed.

UNION COUNTY SHERIFF FEARS MOB VIOLENCE

Names Of Suspects Kept Secret; Detective, State Highway Chief Aiding

MANY ANGLES CHECKED

Holdup Attempt Month Ago Recalled After Drowning Of Clerk, 28

MARYSVILLE, Jan. 7—(INS)—Aided by a special investigator from the Columbus detective bureau, Union county authorities delved deeper into the brutal murder of 28 year old Clark Hayes today and held three suspects in jail for further questioning.

Early last night, six men were rounded up near Sumersville, the village in which Hayes lived, and brought to Marysville.

Sgt. C. C. Cole, head of the Columbus police homicide squad, Col. Lynn Black of the state highway patrol, Sheriff Homer Roosa and Prosecutor William J. Porter, questioned the suspects, all farm hands.

Three of them, from one family, were released but the other three were held.

Identity Not Revealed

Roosa refused to give their names. The sheriff said feeling was running so high in Union county that he was fearful of mob violence if he announced the identity of suspects.

Clark, whose weighted body was found in a quarry five miles northwest of here, was well liked, Roosa said. He disappeared on Tuesday night. He was to have been married on Wednesday to Oletha Morrow, his 26 year old childhood sweetheart.

Roosa and his aides labored until early this morning, carefully checking all angles of the "most brutal murder in Union county for 40 years."

The sheriff was definitely convinced that robbery was the motive for Hayes' murder and he discarded the suicide theory still retained by many friends.

"We found out," the sheriff said, "that Hayes was held up near the quarry about a month ago, but foiled the robbers. He refused to take the advice of friends and carry a gun after that incident.

Although about $147.25 in cash and currency was found in his abandoned truck near the quarry, Hayes was waylaid with robbery as the motive, Roosa declared in reconstructing the scene.

"Whoever accosted Hayes was known to him," the sheriff continued. "Bruises on his knuckles indicated he must have put up a terrific fight and told his attackers that he would expose them. The latter statement probably led to his murder."

Bride To Be Absolved

It was learned that Roosa, after questioning Miss Morrow, had ab-

BETTY FISSELL SUFFERS CUTS IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Miss Betty Fissell, E. Mound street, narrowly escaped serious injury early Saturday when the car she was driving left Route 23, just north of Bell Siding, went into a ditch and overturned.

Miss Fissell suffered a cut lower lip and bruises. She was treated at Berger hospital by Dr. E. L. Montgomery, then taken to her home.

She was riding alone, driving southward on the highway. Officers said the car swerved to the west side of the road, then crossed to the east side, went into the ditch and upset. The car was demolished.

GROVE CITY DEFEATS TIGERS, 26-24, IN THRILLING OVERTIME CONTEST

'SUDDEN DEATH' BUCKET BLASTS RED AND BLACK

Fourth Period Rally Of No Avail As Height Prove Downfall

It was sudden death for the Red and Black of Circleville high school Friday evening after the Tiger varsity had come from far behind to deadlock a tall and versatile Grove City team on the C. A. C. court. The game ended 26-24 in favor of the Greyhounds who had control of the ball during the entirety of an overtime period.

The game ended 24-24 and a three minute overtime session was decided on, the first team to score two points winning. Ackley, Grove City's tall center, tipped the ball to one of his forwards, it was passed around for a few seconds and then Near, Grove City captain and guard, fired the ball toward the hoop. The leather took a dipsy doodle into the net and then jerked out again, but Grove City was not to be denied. The invaders took possession of the leather again and started working it in, Wayne Davis getting a pot shot from in front for the bucket that shut the gate.

Thrilling Drive Futile

The contest was a thriller, especially in the final period. The Red and Black started out like a world beater to score six points before the Grove City team got started. Whitey Davis hit twice and Walters netted a goal from in front to give the Red and Black a lead, but a little lethargy around the center zone in handling the ball permitted Grove City to steal the oval twice for buckets. The period ended 8-5 for the locals.

The second quarter was speedy, too, with Grove City continuing to pull up and at the end of the session the joust was deadlocked at 11.

The invaders came out like a whirlwind for the third period to run the Tiger defense ragged, piling up a lead that had reached 23-13 at the start of the final session. Two free throws were all that the Tigers could get in the third period.

The fourth quarter was different. The Red and Black started breaking into the basket, following shots and taking advantage of every opportunity. With only 20 seconds remaining to play Grove City led 24-23 when Whitey Davis was fouled in attempting a field goal. He tossed the first attempt through the hoop to tie up the contest, and then heaved the ball toward the net the second time in an attempt that would have won the ball game. The leather hit the loop and bounded around and then off on the wrong side. The game ended in a deadlock.

Height Gives Advantage

The game was a rough one and Grove City's height advantage put the Tigers behind the eight-ball from the go. Ackley, Grove center, governed the tip and made it difficult on the Tiger defense under the net because of his size. Both Grove City guards were taller than any athlete on the Red and Black team.

The Tiger reserves blew a neat lead just as did the varsity in losing 13 to 18. The Red and Black was ahead 5-0 at the end of the first period, but the old saying goes that they still pay off on final scores.

Circleville engages Ashville's fine varsity next Tuesday evening on the Ashville court.

VINES SEEKING ANOTHER VICTORY OVER PRO FOE

CHICAGO, Jan. 7—(INS)—Donald Budge and Ellsworth Vines meet in Chicago tonight in the fourth match of their trans-continental tennis tour with Budge determined, he said, to keep the lead.

Budge, who trimmed Vines in his first appearance as a pro in Madison Square garden in New York Tuesday, also won a match from Vines in Boston but lost a third match in Philadelphia.

Vines, veteran pro, predicted he would draw even with Budge. He explained his straight set defeats in New York and Boston with the words:

"I always get the jitters at the beginning, and I hadn't had any previous competition to tune me up. In Philadelphia, I stopped missing. Now I'm off. I'll catch Budge."

Budge and Vines were booked to tour 65 cities this Winter.

GIBBONS OVER SIMMS

COLUMBUS, Jan. 7—(INS)—Claiming the Ohio heavyweight boxing crown today was Floyd Gibbons, Cincinnati youth, who knocked out Frankie Simms, of Cleveland, in four rounds of a scheduled ten-round go last night. The fight was billed as a "championship affair."

WESTERN AMATEUR MEET SET IN OKLAHOMA CITY

CHICAGO, Jan. 7—(INS)—The 1939 Western Amateur golf tournament today was carded for Oklahoma City starting next July 11.

The site was selected at a meeting of the Western Golf association in Chicago last night. At the same time, the Western junior tournament was awarded to the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor starting June 14.

Dates and the site for the Western Open will be announced later.

Directors of the association elected at the meeting included, H. B. Roberts of Cleveland.

BIG TEN COURT SCHEDULE OPENS ON FIVE COURTS

Three Conference Quintets With Clean Slates In Pre-Season Games

CHICAGO, Jan. 7—(INS)—Big Ten cage squads, which have won 52 of 70 games in coast-to-coast early season barnstorming, were to officially launch the 1939 Western conference basketball championship race with five games tonight.

While the records of the "warm-up" games promised the hottest race in Big Ten history, hopes also were high for new attendance records since sell-out crowds of 5,000 and 6,000 already have been drawn by non-conference tilts.

Games carded to pry off the lid tonight were:

Northwestern at Purdue.
Chicago at Minnesota.
Michigan at Illinois
Indiana at Ohio State.

Three of the teams came through the early-season non-conference games unbeaten, namely, Illinois, Indiana and Minnesota, with the Gophers boasting of decisive victories over N. Y. U. and Temple, powerful eastern teams.

Most of the conference interest centered on the Michigan-Illinois tilt, because both were rated as possible title - contenders. The Illini, fresh from a victory over Cornell and paced by Bill Dehner, the center who made 25 points in one game to set a Madison Square Garden record, was given a slight edge.

Wisconsin was also slightly favored over Iowa but in the other clashes Minnesota, Indiana and Purdue, the latter title-defenders, were odds-on choices to win.

MARIETTA BUMPS WITTENBERG FOR STATE SURPRISE

COLUMBUS, Jan. 7—(INS)—Wittenberg's chances of repeating its 1937-38 Ohio Conference basketball title winning performance were dulled today after the Springfield school absorbed a 45 to 41 beating from a determined quintet representing Marietta college.

The defending titlists lacked the color and zip that marked their rush to the top last season. They put up a good fight against the winners but lacked formidability when the combat reached crucial stages.

In a definite upset, Findlay defeated Kent State's previously undefeated five, 44 to 38 while in a Big Four tilt in Cleveland, Western Reserve beat Baldwin-Wallace, 48 to 35.

It was Reserve's first impressive showing since a disastrous road trip into Pennsylvania.

In a Big Four and Ohio Conference go, Case rang up a 36 to 30 decision over John Caroll, somewhat of a surprise.

Xavier, in an independent game, bested St. Josephs of Indiana, 41 to 36.

Ball State, sparked by some unexplainable fire, handed Toledo its first defeat of the season in a 42 to 41 game.

TWO SEXTETS TIE AT 46-ALL IN COURT LOOP

Jackson Township Surprises With 25-19 Edge Over New Holland

Top ranking teams continued their fast pace in the Pickaway county high school league Friday with a girls' contest out at Washington township school and a surprising showing by the Jackson township varsity providing highlights of the evening.

The Washington game saw the Pickaway and Washington girls battle through four periods of heated basketball to a deadlock, the size of which surprises even coaches of boys teams. The fray was nip and tuck all the way with neither team ever having much of a lead. Mary Jane Kreisel scored 25 points for Pickaway with Patty McGinnis close behind with 20. Jones and Matz each scored 22 points for the Washington girls.

The Pickaway boys, led by Guard Roy Dunkle, turned back Washington 30 to 15.

New Holland Upset

Out at Fox the Jackson township boys put a surprising 25-19 victory in the record book over the New Holland Bulldogs. Jackson led the whole distance. The New Holland girls salvaged their contest 17-16 to remain in the running for the right to play in the county tournament.

Ashville's Broncs, like the proverbial river, rolls on and on. Friday night, Muhlenberg fell by a 33-13 score, the Darbyville boys being unable to pierce the Ashville defense.

Darby township took Williamsport, 34-20, with Tracy and Cox carrying off scoring honors, while the Darby girls remained on top the heap with a 27-8 margin over the Deercreekers. Walnut and Perry split, the Walnut girls winning 36-18 but the boys failing by 25-16 on the Atlanta court. Scioto played Hamilton township of Franklin county, losing 28-26 on the Commercial Point court after leading nearly the entire distance.

No report was made of the Monroe-Saltcreek games played on the former's court.

Next week's game include Scioto at Williamsport, Darby at Walnut, Perry at New Holland, Jackson at Pickaway, Washington at Muhlenberg, Ashville at Saltcreek.

Ashville vs. Circleville

Ashville and Circleville play Tuesday evening on the Harrison township court in a game that is expected to fill the gymnasium. Circleville won from Ashville last year in a thriller on the C. A. C. court, a basket in the last second of play winning for the Tigers. Bill Griffith, former Circleville coach, will referee the game. The card that evening begins at 7:15 with the reserve teams of Circleville and Ashville playing. Next will be a girl's contest, Ashville playing Amanda, and then will come the varsity game.

Y., guard, and Chuck Weigand, Columbus center.

DURHAM GREETS DEVILS

DURHAM, N. C., Jan. 7—(INS) Duke's Blue Devils may have been beaten by Southern California in the Rose Bowl but they are still heroes in their home town, it appeared today. Ten thousand crowded the station to cheer them yesterday when they returned home and thousands more lined the streets as they were paraded to the campus.

Billy Conn Seen As Ring Hope After Apostoli Tilt

NEW YORK, Jan. 7—(INS)—Young Billy Conn, of Pittsburgh, today was established as eventual wearer of the light heavyweight crown—and the heavyweight crown, too, perhaps—to the amazed satisfaction of 25,000 local fight customers who last night saw him jab and hook his way to a one-sided decision over Freddy Apostoli, pretender to the middleweight throne.

Throwing his punches like something fired from a scatter gun, Conn made his New York debut by taking eight of ten rounds from the classiest young man currently in the beak-busting business, aside from heavyweight Champion Joe Louis, and made a tremendous hit doing it.

However, at this juncture two things may be pointed out in the order of their probable importance. First, there was nothing at stake and Apostoli, a great money fighter, thus was a little more listless than usual; secondly, Conn at 167¾ pounds held at 7½ pound pull on the scales.

Apostoli Met Master

In any case, it was a satisfying battle, one which saw 2 to 1 odds on Apostoli knocked haywire and the Californian jabbed and hooked into a decisive defeat that was scarcely in keeping with his position as New York commission middleweight champion. Despite the fact that he actually was meeting a light heavyweight there was little to say for him except that he met his master.

A particular favorite with New York customers who have watched his rise from the second rate Hippodrome to Madison Square garden lights, Apostoli managed by dint of extreme industry to win exactly two rounds, the fifth and tenth and through most of the rest of the fight he was pretty thoroughly outclassed. Once, in a wild charge born of desperation, he almost fell on his face trying to catch the elusive young Pittsburgher.

Conn, a gangling six-footer who is growing all the time, boasts of one of the sharpest and most accurate left hands seen in the garden in a long time, and he has a love for fighting that gives you a thrill to behold, with the result that he has been nominated as an early contender for light heavyweight supremacy and a probable eventual foe for Heavyweight Champion Louis.

Punching Improving

Only 21 years old and one of the few Irishmen in the top flight of the heavier divisions, he lacks only an authoritative punch to clinch more impressive ranking, and his punching is developing all the time.

In fact, on the strength of last night's performance he looks like a whale of a fighter.

GROVE CITY DEFEATS TIGERS, 26-24, IN THRILLING OVERTIME CONTEST

'SUDDEN DEATH' BUCKET BLASTS RED AND BLACK

Fourth Period Rally Of No Avail As Height Prove Downfall

It was sudden death for the Red and Black of Circleville high school Friday evening after the Tiger varsity had come from far behind to deadlock a tall and versatile Grove City team on the C. A. C. court. The game ended 26-24 in favor of the Greyhounds who had control of the ball during the entirety of an overtime period.

The game ended 24-24 and a three minute overtime session was decided on, the first team to score two points winning. Ackley, Grove City's tall center, tipped the ball to one of his forwards, it was passed around for a few seconds and then Near, Grove City captain and guard, fired the ball toward the hoop. The leather took a dipsy doodle into the net and then jerked out again, but Grove City was not to be denied. The invaders took possession of the leather again and started working it in, Wayne Davis getting a pot shot from in front for the bucket that shut the gate.

Thrilling Drive Futile

The contest was a thriller, especially in the final period. The Red and Black started out like a world beater to score six points before the Grove City team got started. Whitey Davis hit twice and Walters netted a goal from in front to give the Red and Black a lead, but a little lethargy around the center zone in handling the ball permitted Grove City to steal the oval twice for buckets. The period ended 8-5 for the locals.

The second quarter was speedy, too, with Grove City continuing to pull up and at the end of the session the joust was deadlocked at 11.

The invaders came out like a whirlwind for the third period to run the Tiger defense ragged, piling up a lead that had reached 23-13 at the start of the final session. Two free throws were all that the Tigers could get in the third period.

The fourth quarter was different. The Red and Black started breaking into the basket, following shots and taking advantage of every opportunity. With only 20 seconds remaining to play Grove City led 24-23 when Whitey Davis was fouled in attempting a field goal. He tossed the first attempt through the hoop to tie up the contest, and then heaved the ball toward the net the second time in an attempt that would have won the ball game. The leather hit the loop and bounded around and then off on the wrong side. The game ended in a deadlock.

Height Gives Advantage

The game was a rough one and Grove City's height advantage put the Tigers behind the eight-ball from the go. Ackley, Grove center, governed the tip and made it difficult on the Tiger defense under the net because of his size. Both Grove City guards were taller than any athlete on the Red and Black team.

The Tiger reserves blew a neat lead just as did the varsity in losing 13 to 18. The Red and Black was ahead 5-0 at the end of the first period, but the old saying goes that they still pay off on final scores.

Circleville engages Ashville's fine varsity next Tuesday evening on the Ashville court.

VINES SEEKING ANOTHER VICTORY OVER PRO FOE

CHICAGO, Jan. 7—(INS)—Donald Budge and Ellsworth Vines meet in Chicago tonight in the fourth match of their trans-continental tennis tour with Budge determined, he said, to keep the lead.

Budge, who trimmed Vines in his first appearance as a pro in Madison Square garden in New York Tuesday, also won a match from Vines in Boston but lost a third match in Philadelphia.

Vines, veteran pro, predicted he would draw even with Budge. He explained his straight set defeats in New York and Boston with the words:

"I always get the jitters at the beginning, and I hadn't had any previous competition to tune me up. In Philadelphia, I stopped missing. Now I'm off. I'll catch Budge."

Budge and Vines were booked to tour 65 cities this Winter.

GIBBONS OVER SIMMS

COLUMBUS, Jan. 7—(INS)—Claiming the Ohio heavyweight boxing crown today was Floyd Gibbons, Cincinnati youth, who knocked out Frankie Simms, of Cleveland, in four rounds of a scheduled ten-round go last night. The fight was billed as a "championship affair."

WESTERN AMATEUR MEET SET IN OKLAHOMA CITY

CHICAGO, Jan. 7—(INS)—The 1939 Western Amateur golf tournament today was carded for Oklahoma City starting next July 11.

The site was selected at a meeting of the Western Golf association in Chicago last night. At the same time, the Western junior tournament was awarded to the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor starting June 14.

Dates and the site for the Western Open will be announced later.

Directors of the association elected at the meeting included, T. B. Roberts of Cleveland.

BIG TEN COURT SCHEDULE OPENS ON FIVE COURTS

Three Conference Quintets With Clean Slates In Pre-Season Games

CHICAGO, Jan. 7—(INS)—Big Ten cage squads, which have won 52 of 70 games in coast-to-coast early season barnstorming, were to officially launch the 1939 Western conference basketball championship race with five games tonight.

While the records of the "warm-up" games promised the hottest race in Big Ten history, hopes also were high for new attendance records since sell-out crowds of 5,000 and 6,000 already have been drawn by non-conference tilts.

Games carded to pry off the lid tonight were:

Northwestern at Purdue.
Chicago at Minnesota.
Michigan at Illinois
Indiana at Ohio State.

Three of the teams came through the early-season non-conference games unbeaten, namely, Illinois, Indiana and Minnesota, with the Gophers boasting of decisive victories over N. Y. U. and Temple, powerful eastern teams.

Most of the conference interest centered on the Michigan-Illinois tilt, because both were rated as possible title - contenders. The Illini, fresh from a victory over Cornell and paced by Bill Dehner, the center who made 25 points in one game to set a Madison Square Garden record, was given a slight edge.

Wisconsin was also slightly favored over Iowa but in the other clashes Minnesota, Indiana and Purdue, the latter title-defenders, were odds-on choices to win.

MARIETTA BUMPS WITTENBERG FOR STATE SURPRISE

COLUMBUS, Jan. 7—(INS)—Wittenberg's chances of repeating its 1937-38 Ohio Conference basketball title winning performance were dulled today after the Springfield school absorbed a 45 to 41 beating from a determined quintet representing Marietta college.

The defending titlists lacked the color and zip that marked their rush to the top last season. They put up a good fight against the winners but lacked formidability when the combat reached crucial stages.

In a definite upset, Findlay defeated Kent State's previously undefeated five, 44 to 38 while in a Big Four tilt in Cleveland, Western Reserve beat Baldwin-Wallace, 48 to 35.

It was Reserve's first impressive showing since a disastrous road trip into Pennsylvania.

In a Big Four and Ohio Conference go, Case rang up a 36 to 30 decision over John Caroll, somewhat of a surprise.

Xavier, in an independent game, bested St. Josephs of Indiana, 41 to 36.

Ball State, sparked by some unexplainable fire, handed Toledo its first defeat of the season in a 42 to 41 game.

TWO SEXTETS TIE AT 46-ALL IN COURT LOOP

Jackson Township Surprises With 25-19 Edge Over New Holland

Top ranking teams continued their fast pace in the Pickaway county high school league Friday with a girls' contest out at Washington township school and a surprising showing by the Jackson township varsity providing highlights of the evening.

The Washington game saw the Pickaway and Washington girls battle through four periods of heated basketball to a deadlock, the size of which surprises even coaches of boys teams. The fray was nip and tuck all the way with neither team ever having much of a lead. Mary Jane Kreisel scored 25 points for Pickaway with Patty McGinnis close behind with 20. Jones and Matz each scored 22 points for the Washington girls.

The Pickaway boys, led by Guard Roy Dunkle, turned back Washington 30 to 15.

New Holland Upset

Out at Fox the Jackson township boys put a surprising 25-19 victory in the record book over the New Holland Bulldogs. Jackson led the whole distance. The New Holland girls salvaged their contest 17-16 to remain in the running for the right to play in the county tournament.

Ashville's Broncs, like the proverbial river, rolls on and on. Friday night, Muhlenberg fell by a 33-13 score, the Darbyville boys being unable to pierce the Ashville defense.

Darby township took Williamsport, 34-20, with Tracy and Cox carrying off scoring honors, while the Darby girls remained on top the heap with a 27-8 margin over the Deercreekers. Walnut and Perry split, the Walnut girls winning 36-18 but the boys failing by 25-16 on the Atlanta court. Scioto played Hamilton township of Franklin county, losing 28-26 on the Commercial Point court after leading nearly the entire distance.

No report was made of the Monroe-Saltcreek games played on the former's court.

Next week's game include Scioto at Williamsport, Darby at Walnut, Perry at New Holland, Jackson at Pickaway, Washington at Muhlenberg, Ashville at Saltcreek.

Ashville vs. Circleville

Ashville and Circleville play Tuesday evening on the Harrison township court in a game that is expected to fill the gymnasium. Circleville won from Ashville last year in a thriller on the C. A. C. court, a basket in the last second of play winning for the Tigers. Bill Griffith, former Circleville coach, will referee the game. The card that evening begins at 7:15 with the reserve teams of Circleville and Ashville playing. Next will be a girl's contest, Ashville playing Amanda, and then will come the varsity game.

Billy Conn Seen As Ring Hope After Apostoli Tilt

NEW YORK, Jan. 7—(INS)—Young Billy Conn, of Pittsburgh, today was established as eventual wearer of the light heavyweight crown—and the heavyweight crown, too, perhaps—to the amazed satisfaction of 25,000 local fight customers who last night saw him jab and hook his way to a one-sided decision over Freddy Apostoli, pretender to the middleweight throne.

Throwing his punches like something fired from a scatter gun, Conn made his New York debut by taking eight of ten rounds from the classiest young man currently in the beak-busting business, aside from heavyweight Champion Joe Louis, and made a tremendous hit doing it.

However, at this juncture two things may be pointed out in the order of their probable importance. First, there was nothing at stake and Apostoli, a great money fighter, thus was a little more listless than usual; secondly, Conn at 167¾ pounds held at 7½ pound pull on the scales.

Apostoli Met Master

In any case, it was a satisfying battle, one which saw 2 to 1 odds on Apostoli knocked haywire and the Californian jabbed and hooked into a decisive defeat that was scarcely in keeping with his position as New York commission middleweight champion. Despite the fact that he actually was meeting a light heavyweight there was little to say for him except that he met his master.

A particular favorite with New York customers who have watched his rise from the second rate Hippodrome to Madison Square garden lights, Apostoli managed by dint of extreme industry to win exactly two rounds, the fifth and tenth and through most of the rest of the fight he was pretty thoroughly outclassed. Once, in a wild charge born of desperation, he almost fell on his face trying to catch the elusive young Pittsburgher.

Conn, a gangling six-footer who is growing all the time, boasts of one of the sharpest and most accurate left hands seen in the garden in a long time, and he has a love for fighting that gives you a thrill to behold, with the result that he has been nominated as an early contender for light heavyweight supremacy and a probable eventual foe for Heavyweight Champion Louis.

Punching Improving

Only 21 years old and one of the few Irishmen in the top flight of the heavier divisions, he lacks only an authoritative punch to clinch more impressive ranking, and his punching is developing all the time.

In fact, on the strength of last night's performance he looks like a whale of a fighter.

Peter Commended and Rebuked ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 16:13-25.

"Whom do you say that I am?" Jesus asked His disciples. Simon Peter answered: "Thou art the Christ," and received the Lord's praise.

Jesus hinted that He was to suffer many things in the near future, but Peter rebuked Him and was in turn reproved.

A centurion had such faith in Jesus' healing power that he asked that He just speak and his servant would be cured.

The Samaritans of a certain village would not receive Jesus, which made the disciples very angry.
(GOLDEN TEXT—Matthew 16:16.)

"Thou art the Christ, the Son of the Living God."—Matthew 16:16.

Peter Commended and Rebuked

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Jan. 8 is Matthew 16:13-25, the Golden Text being Matthew 16:16, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the Living God.")

BY NEWMAN CAMPBELL

IT IS NOW a year after Simon Peter left his boat and fishing activities and followed Jesus. Jesus and His disciples came to Caesarea Phillippi, about 25 miles north of the Sea of Galilee.

Jesus was curious, as any of us might have been, as to what people said of Him, and asked His disciples, "Whom do men say that I, the Son of Man, am?"

"Some say Thou art John the Baptist; some, Elias, and others Jeremiah or one of the other phophets." they answered.

"But whom say ye that I am?" He asked. And Simon Peter answered for them: "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the Living God."

This answer pleased Jesus. "Bessed art thou, Simon Barjona," he answered. Barjona means son of Jonah or John. He also told him that He would give him (Peter) the keys of heaven. You know Peter is called the gatekeeper of heaven.

Then Jesus told His disciples that they should not tell anyone whom they thought He was. He told them that He must go to Jerusalem and "suffer many things." At that Peter rebuked the Lord, saying that such things could not happen to Him.

But Jesus reproved Peter, telling him to "get thee behind me, Satan." Maybe even His heart failed when He thought of all the pain and suffering He was to endure—the accusations, the trials, the cross, and felt He would escape them if He could.

"Then," said Jesus unto His disciples, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me. For whosoever will save his life shall lose it; and whosoever will lose his life for my sake shall fine it."

Meaning that the good life is not easy, and it takes a person who is not afraid to take a firm stand even if it means that he will lose his life.

The impression that Jesus made on his bearers is illustrated by the story of the centurion. A centurion was a caption of an hundred men. He came to Jesus and said his servant as sick with the palsy—very sick. He wanted Jesus to heal him, but when Jesus said he would come to his home the centurion said he was not worthy to have the Master visit him, but that if He would only speak a word his servant would be saved.

And Jesus marveled at the man's faith, and said to him, "Go thy way; and as thou hast believed, so be it done unto thee." And his servant was healed in that same hour.

All through the accounts of Jesus' life you see how strong He was in His character. He gave praise where it was due. But He also told his followers and everyone just what He thought, and rebuked them when they were wrong, whether they were humble folk or "those in high places."

Real praise and appreciation are helpful, and so is just criticism. When you are scolded, try to ask yourself, "Do I deserve that?" If you can truthful say the rebuke is unjust, try to forget it; but if you know in your heart that it is true, mend your ways. That is what Peter did. He, too, was a strong man, a real leader, one that other men followed. Although later he was to show himself weak in many ways, yet he was the one Jesus loved and who was truly a rock, as Jesus called him, "and upon this rock will I build my church," He said.

For 20 years Peter was the outstanding leader of the early Christian church, and although he was only an ignorant fisherman, he was looked up to by all who worked with him and is known as Jesus' best loved disciple.

Peter Commended and Rebuked — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 16:13-25.

"Whom do you say that I am?" Jesus asked His disciples. Simon Peter answered: "Thou art the Christ," and received the Lord's praise.

Jesus hinted that He was to suffer many things in the near future, but Peter rebuked Him and was in turn reproved.

A centurion had such faith in Jesus' healing power that he asked that He just speak and his servant would be cured.

The Samaritans of a certain village would not receive Jesus, which made the disciples very angry.

(GOLDEN TEXT—Matthew 16:16.)

Peter Commended and Rebuked

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Jan. 8 is Matthew 16: 13-25, the Golden Text being Matthew 16:16, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the Living God.")

BY NEWMAN CAMPBELL

IT IS NOW a year after Simon Peter left his boat and fishing activities and followed Jesus. Jesus and His disciples came to Caesarea Phillippi, about 25 miles north of the Sea of Galilee.

Jesus was curious, as any of us might have been, as to what people said of Him, and asked His disciples, "Whom do men say that I, the Son of Man, am?"

"Some say Thou art John the Baptist; some, Elias, and others Jeremiah or one of the other phophets." they answered.

"But whom say ye that I am?" He asked. And Simon Peter answered for them: "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the Living God."

This answer pleased Jesus. "Bessed art thou, Simon Barjona," he answered. Barjona means son of Jonah or John. He also told him that He would give him (Peter) the keys of heaven. You know Peter is called the gatekeeper of heaven.

Then Jesus told His disciples that they should not tell anyone whom they thought He was. He told them that He must go to Jerusalem and "suffer many things." At that Peter rebuked the Lord, saying that such things could not happen to Him.

But Jesus reproved Peter, telling him to "get thee behind me, Satan." Maybe even His heart failed when He thought of all the pain and suffering He was to endure—the accusations, the trials, the cross, and felt He would escape them if He could.

"Then," said Jesus unto His disciples, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me. For whosoever will save his life shall lose it; and whosoever will lose his life for my sake shall fine it."

Meaning that the good life is not easy, and it takes a person who is not afraid to take a firm stand even if it means that he will lose his life.

The impression that Jesus made on his bearers is illustrated by the story of the centurion. A centurion was a caption of an hundred men. He came to Jesus and said his servant as sick with the palsy—very sick. He wanted Jesus to heal him, but when Jesus said he would come to his home the centurion said he was not worthy to have the Master visit him, but that if He would only speak a word his servant would be saved.

And Jesus marveled at the man's faith, and said to him, "Go thy way; and as thou hast believed, so be it done unto thee." And his servant was healed in that same hour.

All through the accounts of Jesus' life you see how strong He was in His character. He gave praise where it was due. But He also told his followers and everyone just what He thought, and rebuked them when they were wrong, whether they were humble folk or "those in high places."

Real praise and appreciation are helpful, and so is just criticism. When you are scolded, try to ask yourself, "Do I deserve that?" If you can truthful say the rebuke is unjust, try to forget it; but if you know in your heart that it is true, mend your ways. That is what Peter did. He, too, was a strong man, a real leader, one that other men followed. Although later he was to show himself weak in many ways, yet he was the one Jesus loved and who was truly a rock, as Jesus called him, "and upon this rock will I build my church," He said.

For 20 years Peter was the outstanding leader of the early Christian church, and although he was only an ignorant fisherman, he was looked up to by all who worked with him and is known as Jesus' best loved disciple.

SOVIET SLUMP

DICTATOR STALIN, like the noble King of France in the nursery rhyme, seems to have marched Russia up a great, high hill and then marched down again. Not much news has been coming out of Moscow lately, except occasional "purges", but what does get past the censors indicates failure of the world's greatest experiment in regimentation.

After more than 20 years of struggle, terror, planning and striving, we are told, the Russians are no better off than they were under the czars.

A superhuman effort to industrialize Russia is so far from realization that the people lack decent food and shelter and cannot get enough clothing to keep them warm. Wages are low, supplies are short and stores are poorly stocked. Farmers cannot get manufactured goods and industrial and office workers cannot get enough to eat. The scarcity of clothing leads to exorbitant prices, in a country professing equality of price and opportunity. In many places they are said to be falling back on barter. A good suit of clothes may cost a workman six months' wages.

Do these failures account for the executions which have horrified the outer world, or vice versa? It is hard to say. But Russia seems to be nearing the end of its great experiment.

WOMEN VS. COLDS

LADIES and gentlemen! In this corner, Kid Common Cold. In that corner, the embattled womanhood of America. It is going to be a grand fight, and we're betting that, although the women may not knock the common cold clear out of the winter, they will at least greatly reduce its power.

The plan is to distribute among women all over the country the report of a recent forum study of the common cold, held under the auspices of the Consumers Advisory Committee. Leaders in the movement urge "all home makers, mothers and teachers" to study the report carefully, distribute it among their friends and families and through the schools and carry out its recommendations for avoiding colds and treating them if they come.

"The common cold is so common," says a leader in this health fight, "that few of us realize it is the cause of more disability and absences from school and business than any other illness, as well as the forerunner of danger secondary diseases."

The cold that really gets a hold on its victim not only runs its course but may hang on indefinitely, often leading to other ailments and weakening the system. The best thing to do about a cold is not to catch one in the first place. But if you fail in this, then treat it with respect and fear, get plenty of rest, carry out the doctor's orders carefully, and refrain from spreading it around to others.

Welcome, Congress! We've got so used to being pestered by you that we're lonesome between sessions.

BUSINESS GETS SURPRISE

WASHINGTON—Business has received a lot of surprises from the Roosevelt Administration during the last six years—most of them disagreeable. But none is quite so odd as that handed them by the new Secretary of Commerce — and this time it looks agreeable.

The surprise is that most of the business men who have met Hopkins to date come away singing his praises. They find him cooperative and reasonable. They like his freshness of viewpoint. And most of all, they appreciate the fact that when he speaks, he speaks as the man closest to the White House.

It has been a long time — not since Hoover was in Hopkins' shoes—that business had a Secretary of Commerce who could get what he wanted from the White House.

Even when Hoover was President he began to strip his once favorite department of its old-time power. And under Roper, this deterioration continued at an accelerated pace. Roper lost the Bureau of Air Commerce, the Shipping Board, and was about to lose the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce to the States Department, until the Commerce Department today is but a shell.

This terribly grieved Uncle Dan Roper. But not Hopkins. He says:

"Now we can begin building from the ground up. Harold (Ickes) can have the fisheries. They don't have anything to do with business. We'll keep the tanks to swim in. And the Labor Department can have the Census, if it wants it.

"I just want three things.

"First, the transportation problem, and by that I mean not merely railroads, but the buses, the waterways and the airlines, all of which comprise about the biggest economic problem in this country.

"Second, the employers' viewpoint regarding labor—and there is an employers' viewpoint.

"And third, South American trade. That is where our great future lies."

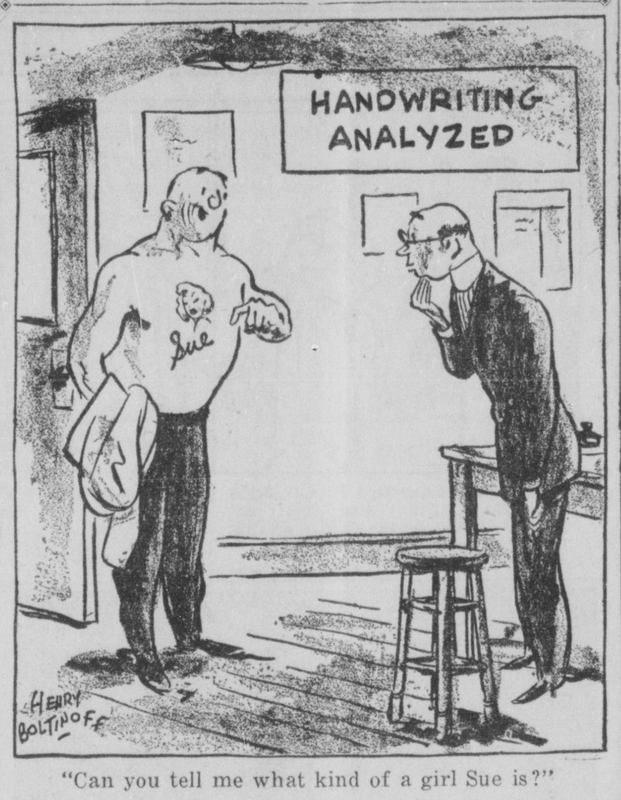

KEY POSITION

To get the import of Harry Hopkins' key position, you have to remember first that no one else is closer to the President except for his son, Jimmy.

Hopkins dines with Roosevelt two and three times a week, confers with him almost daily, is a frequent visitor at Hyde Park. Roosevelt likes his humor, trusts his judgment, consults with him on almost everything.

Hopkins can accomplish things at the White House which nobody else can, and it is a safe bet that if business once sells an idea to the new Secretary of Commerce, he will have no trouble getting it to the White House. Harry will be the best envoy to the presidential court that business has enjoyed in years.

DIET AND HEALTH

Water Balance Keeps Us Going

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

YESTERDAY we discussed the wonderfully-balanced mechanism of the regulation of bodily temperature. Much of this depends upon an equally delicate mechanism, the water balance of the body.

Of all the substances we take into our bodies, water is the one which remains the most stable. The amount of water in the tissues hardly varies as much as a drop. If it does, if the body becomes dehydrated from hot weather and too much perspiration, serious consequences follow.

As for getting too much water into the cells, that is almost impossible. Experiments have been made attempting it by drinking such large amounts of water as to amount to saturation so as to add to the water content of the tissues, but hardly as much as a teaspoonful could be added. But even then very serious symptoms amounting to shock occurred from that small an addition.

Many Functions

Water performs many functions though on its way through the body. We are conscious of perspiration in the summer time, but even on the coldest day we have some invisible perspiration occurring constantly, the evaporation of which helps to keep the body in temperature equilibrium. Water is used by the salivary glands and the mucous glands of the nose and mouth, to keep those cavities moist. Much of our hourly comfort depends on that.

And all along the digestive tract the same lubrication occurs. Any excess of water in the body is spilled over through the kidneys, taking with it some body heat which also helps temperature regulation.

The regulation of water balance is maintained so far as intake is concerned by the sensation of thirst. This is certainly one of the most sensitive functions of the body. It regulates minutely how much water is needed. Nobody knows where the center of the sensation of thirst lies, but it must be part of every body cell. If the day is cold and not much perspiration is needed to regulate temperature, a man of average weight will drink about a quart of water a day. It is reported by a medical officer of the British army that in India the average intake among men of a regiment is from 10 to 15 quarts a day.

Every Cell Needs It

Thirst arises from the need of every cell in the body, but the local site which causes the acute sensation is the mouth, and if the mouth is kept moist, no matter how much the cells need water, the sensation of thirst will be largely alleviated.

W. J. McGee, a geologist who has had wide experience in the desert region of the southwest, writes: "Thirst is commonly relieved by a moderate quantity of water; sometimes fruit acids and other acid substances exciting a flow of saliva are requisite for relief, and in the practical life of the range a pebble or a nail carried in the mouth is often efficacious."

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Water is good treatment for temperature disturbances. It can be used both externally and internally. A hot bath and a hot lemonade are the best treatment for exposure to cold and chill these winter evenings. Cold water internally and externally is splendid treatment for fever. Indeed, in the treatment of many diseases the use of water could well be exclusively depended upon.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Reader: "Could a person gaining weight possibly have tuberculosis?"

Answer—Certainly. It is a regular thing for patients under the rest treatment to gain fifteen or twenty pounds or more.

I. F.: "Is it possible for a person who has a calcium deficiency to go to the other extreme by taking an overdose of same in the various tablet forms? What is the best way to get sufficient calcium for a person other than the ordinary milk ration?"

Answer: According to Sherman ("The Chemistry of Food and Nutrition"), "The ordinary mixed diet of Americans and Europeans is probably more often deficient in calcium than in any other chemical element." In spite of this authoritative statement, there are few conditions in which calcium deficiency can be proved clinically, and 90 per cent of those occur in children (rickets) and nursing mothers. I know of no harm that excess of calcium can do. It can be taken in milk or in pure form—calcium carbonate—but is of little value if parathyroid deficiency exists. I think you need a doctor to straighten you out.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet", "Indigestion and Constipation", "Reducing and Gaining", "Infant Feeding", "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes", "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

DEATH AT THE MANOR

BY M. E. CORNE

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

Elsie Ritter, a beauty shop operator, taking the place of a friend for a week in the private salon of Mrs. Horace Witherspoon, Sr., finds herself involved in a mystery when the eccentric old lady is found dead under one of the hair driers after Elsie had left the room for a few moments. She is further humiliated when she learns that one of the servants in the Manor's household suspects her of taking Mrs. Witherspoon's emeralds, which are missing. Certain members of the Witherspoon family and some of the house guests strike Elsie as queer, and she is surprised when the old lady's son, Horace Witherspoon, advises her to say nothing of the missing jewels for fear of publicity and the police. The coroner arrives for his investigation. Phil Benson, Elsie's friend and a reporter, comes for an obituary for his paper and Elsie shows him around the mansion. Mrs. Witherspoon's funeral is held the next day. Elsie is at her wit's end when Mrs. Horace Witherspoon, Jr., dies suddenly while under the same ill-fated drier in the salon the next morning. The police arrive and launch an investigation. The coroner pronounces the second death a case of murder and says he suspects poison. The chief of police threatens to arrest Elsie when she cannot explain the disappearance of old Mrs. Witherspoon's jewels. Then Phil Benson arrives.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER NINETEEN

"WHAT'S THIS all about?" Phil demanded of Chief Ellis. "You don't seriously suspect Elsie, do you?"

"She's mixed up in the murder," Chief Ellis insisted. "She has a lot of explaining to do."

"Don't listen to him!" I dried my tears. "I'll tell you everything!" And I repeated my story of the morning's events. When I had finished I felt much better. It was up up to Phil now, and he was a darned sight smarter than the whole Lawnville police force. That I knew!

"You don't think I did it, do you?" I demanded as he remained silent.

"No. No, of course not. But surely you see, darling, that it does look bad for you. Plenty bad! We must find out who did poison Mrs. Horace and who did steal the emeralds or"—he paused, and my heart slid to the bottom of my boots—"never mind," and he smiled and squeezed my hand, "we'll find out some way."

"I'll find out," Chief Ellis corrected. "You leave things to me."

"That's just what I'm going to do." Phil cracked the palms of his hands together. "I'm going to get Mac McIntyre out here!"

"Mac McIntyre!" I echoed. "Who is he?"

"Never mind!" Phil was leafing through the phone book. "What th' hell is his number?"

"Listen here, Benson!" The chief of police sounded perturbed. "There's no need to call McIntyre in on this!"

But Phil was not listening. He was talking eagerly into the mouthpiece of the telephone.

"He's coming right out!" he shouted presently, banging the receiver. "And, baby, that's a break! Mac will get to the bottom of things in no time."

"But who is he?" I persisted. "I never heard of him."

"Who is he?" Phil laughed excitedly. "He's a hometown lad who made good in the big city! Head of the Chicago homicide squad!"

"Is he in Chicago now?"

"Hardly. He's right downtown at the hotel. Got shot up in some gangster affair a month or so ago, and he's back in Lawnville to recuperate. But give a fire horse the smell of the hose and he'll come running. He jumped at the chance to get in on this business."

Chief Ellis objected: "You have no authority to call him in on this case! I'm chief of police in this town."

"Don't be that way, Ellis," Phil chided him. "He's not going to usurp your authority. Besides, Elsie is entitled to hire herself a private detective if she wants to."

I protested: "I can't afford a private detective."

"You can't afford to go to jail! Don't worry, sugar, just leave things to me."

"All right," I said. Leaving things to him suited me perfectly.

"You two come with me," Ellis ordered. "I'm going to question the others and I want you with me."

"O. K." Phil lighted a cigaret. "Lead on!"

The drawing room was the size of the library, although much lighter and brighter. The furnishings were formal. Gilt tables and chairs and stiff settees covered with cloth of gold. Dull saffron drapes caught the sun's rays and diffused a pale, golden light throughout the room. Paintings hung upon the walls; a floor-to-ceiling mirror embellished with fat, gilt cupids reflected the scene.

"I'm going to ask each of you where you were at the time of the crime," Ellis said, walking to the center of the room. "I know," he added, as a murmur of protest arose from his listeners, "I know none of you were in the salon between eleven and eleven-fifteen, but I want to know where else you were. Now we'll start and go around the room."

"Where were you, Mr. Witherspoon, during those fifteen minutes?"

"I spent the entire morning in the library," Mr. Horace replied, quietly.

"Did anyone see you there?"

"No; I was quite alone."

"Do you have any idea who murdered your wife??

"I have not." And I admired the manner in which he received that brutal question without flinching.

"She had no enemies?"

"I can't think so; she was well liked by all."

"Do you think she committed suicide?"

"I don't know! I don't know." The little man held his body rigid. "I had rather believe that she killed herself than that she was murdered."

"Did she ever to your knowledge threaten to kill herself?"

"No. No! But she was easily depressed and subject to spells of melancholia."

I sat up. The suicide angle dumfounded me! I had never thought of suicide and yet—yet it was possible! I was the only person who knew positively that I had not administered poison, and if I had not, who had? The further I went the more tangled I became. Perhaps Mrs. Horace had decided that life was not worth living. Still, a woman who contemplates suicide does not usually undergo the agony of a permanent wave to look pretty in her coffin! That part of it did not make sense. I gave up trying to figure out the whys and wherefores, and focused my wandering attention upon the chief of police.

"Mother did not kill herself!" cried Daphne, her eyes bright pools of horror. "She couldn't bear to think of death. It frightened her horribly!"

"Is that so?" Chief Ellis stared at her. "What do you know about this business, Miss Witherspoon?"

"I?" She bit her underlip as the color drained slowly from her face. "I know nothing about it," she stated clearly.

"Yet you were the only person to visit the salon while your mother was there?"

"If you say so."

"Just what was the object of your visit?"

Daphne's mouth curled slightly. "I had no object," she said glibly. "I dropped in to see how the permanent was progressing."

"So you knew she was going to have a permanent?"

"Yes, I knew."

"Who else knew of it?"

Someone knocked a book from the top of a table. It crashed loudly to the floor. The chief's eyes located the culprit and glared at him. In that instant that his gaze shifted from Daphne Witherspoon to her brother, who inadventently had dropped the book and so caused the disturbance, in that instant I glimpsed something that started a train of thought in my mind I would have given anything to ignore.

For no reason at all, perhaps because I was watching her so closely, I did not shift my gaze from the girl to the boy. And because of this I saw something which the others missed.

I saw Daphne Witherspoon as she pondered the policeman's question. I saw her open her mouth to reply and close it again. I saw her remember some one thing to which, until that moment, she had attached no significance, or had completely forgotten. Some one thing that struck her dumb so that she stood stricken, pale as marble from lips to brow.

"Well?" Ellis returned to her.

"I'm afraid I missed the question," she said with apparent indifference, but her hands in her lap were clenched and interlocked.

"I asked whether anyone else in the house knew of the permanent," he repeated, frowning as if he were not greatly pleased at the way thing were shaping—or not shaping.

Daphne hesitated so briefly before replying, so briefly, that it was barely noticeable she hesitated at all. "I really couldn't say," she said, and her voice as she mouthed the lie was unfaltering. I felt myself getting sick. Daphne, that bright-haired young thing!

"Do you mean you don't know?"

"Yes."

"Miss Ritter!" He shouted my name so unexpectedly that my blood seemed to turn to water.

"Ye-es?"

"I want you to repeat as nearly as possible the conversation that took place between Miss Witherspoon and her mother this morning in the salon."

"Why—why—I wasn't paying much attention."

Chief Ellis would not be evaded. He demanded: "Did Miss Witherspoon say anything that might lead you to think she had persuaded her mother to have a permanent?"

"Well"—I tried to swallow and choked—"she did say so, yes."

"What was it she said?"

"That she had been trying for a long time to persuade her mother to have a wave."

"So!" He had scored his point. I felt sicker than ever. I braced myself for a third question, but he turned from me and back to the girl.

"Did you say that?"

Daphne shrugged. "Possibly, I don't remember."

"My dear man!" Mr. Horace intervened. "Don't you think you are making a mistake? Daphne was devoted to her mother."

Chief Ellis replied: "I'm not accusing your daughter, Mr. Witherspoon. All will be questioned before we're finished."

"You're making a damned jackass of yourself, that's what you're doing!" Richard leaped to his feet.

Up in time to see a gorgeous sunrise and wondering why it is that as one grows older one needs much less morning sleep. I remember that as a kid it seemed as though I never could sleep long enough in the morning and, if permitted to do so, remained abed until noon. Now, that would be a real task, sleeping that long. Maybe we older ones can not sleep because nature is telling us that we had better be up and kicking around while we can.

And getting up reminds me of an incident of a farmer and an alarm clock, noted the other day. The farmer had bought an alarm, but had brought it back. "I don't want this thing," he declared. "It just tinkles a little bit and then chimes. I want something that will get me out of bed." He insisted on hearing the bells of every clock in the place. Finally, the clerk touched off one that sounded like a four alarm fire notice. A smile broke over the farmer's face and he said: "That's it. That's the one I want." Why, that clock would not only wake me; it would practically throw me down stairs. I wouldn't want the thing anywhere in my neighborhood, but it is what the farmer wanted. Probably if I had to get up as early as that farmer I would need an alarm like that, too.

SOVIET SLUMP

DICTATOR STALIN, like the noble King of France in the nursery rhyme, seems to have marched Russia up a great, high hill and then marched down again. Not much news has been coming out of Moscow lately, except occasional "purges", but what does get past the censors indicates failure of the world's greatest experiment in regimentation.

After more than 20 years of struggle, terror, planning and striving, we are told, the Russians are no better off than they were under the czars.

A superhuman effort to industrialize Russia is so far from realization that the people lack decent food and shelter and cannot get enough clothing to keep them warm. Wages are low, supplies are short and stores are poorly stocked. Farmers cannot get manufactured goods and industrial and office workers cannot get enough to eat. The scarcity of clothing leads to exorbitant prices, in a country professing equality of pride and opportunity. In many places they are said to be falling back on barter. A good suit of clothes may cost a workman six months' wages.

Do these failures account for the executions which have horrified the outer world, or vice versa? It is hard to say. But Russia seems to be nearing the end of its great experiment.

WOMEN VS. COLDS

LADIES and gentlemen! In this corner, Kid Common Cold. In that corner, the embattled womanhood of America. It is going to be a grand fight, and we're betting that, although the women may not knock the common cold clear out of the winter, they will at least greatly reduce its power.

The plan is to distribute among women all over the country the report of a recent forum study of the common cold, held under the auspices of the Consumers Advisory Committee. Leaders in the movement urge "all home makers, mothers and teachers" to study the report carefully, distribute it among their friends and families and through the schools and carry out its recommendations for avoiding colds and treating them if they come.

"The common cold is so common," says a leader in this health fight, "that few of us realize it is the cause of more disability and absences from school and business than any other illness, as well as the forerunner of danger secondary diseases."

The cold that really gets a hold on its victim not only runs its course but may hang on indefinitely, often leading to other ailments and weakening the system. The best thing to do about a cold is not to catch one in the first place. But if you fail in this, then treat it with respect and fear, get plenty of rest, carry out the doctor's orders carefully, and refrain from spreading it around to others.

Welcome, Congress! We've got so used to being pestered by you that we're lonesome between sessions.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BUSINESS GETS SURPRISE

WASHINGTON—Business has received a lot of surprises from the Roosevelt Administration during the last six years—most of them disagreeable. But none is quite so odd as that handed them by the new Secretary of Commerce — and this time it looks agreeable.

The surprise is that most of the business men who have met Hopkins to date come away singing his praises. They find him cooperative and reasonable. They like his freshness of viewpoint. And most of all, they appreciate the fact that when he speaks, he speaks as the man closest to the White House.

It has been a long time — not since Hoover was in Hopkins' shoes—that business had a Secretary of Commerce who could get what he wanted from the White House.

Even when Hoover was President he began to strip his once favorite department of its old-time power. And under Roper, this deterioration continued at an accelerated pace. Roper lost the Bureau of Air Commerce, the Shipping Board, and was about to lose the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce to the States Department, until the Commerce Department today is but a shell.

This terribly grieved Uncle Dan Roper. But not Hopkins. He says:

"Now we can begin building from the ground up. Harold (Ickes) can have the fisheries. They don't have anything to do with business. We'll keep the tanks to swim in. And the Labor Department can have the Census, if it wants it.

"I just want three things.

"First, the transportation problem, and by that I mean not merely railroads, but the buses, the waterways and the airlines, all of which comprise about the biggest economic problem in this country.

"Second, the employers' viewpoint regarding labor—and there is an employers' viewpoint.

"And third, South American trade. That is where our great future lies."

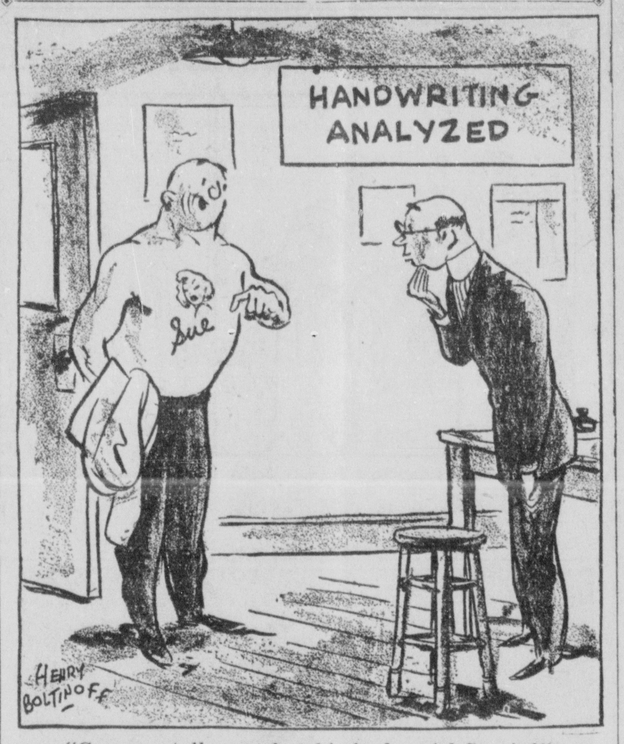

KEY POSITION

To get the import of Harry Hopkins' key position, you have to remember first that no one else is closer to the President except for his son, Jimmy.

Hopkins dines with Roosevelt two and three times a week, confers with him almost daily, is a frequent visitor at Hyde Park. Roosevelt likes his humor, trusts his judgment, consults with him on almost everything.

Hopkins can accomplish things at the White House which nobody else can, and it is a safe bet that if business once sells an idea to the new Secretary of Commerce, he will have no trouble getting it to the White House. Harry will be the best envoy to the presidential court that business has enjoyed in years.

DIET AND HEALTH

Water Balance Keeps Us Going

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

YESTERDAY we discussed the wonderfully-balanced mechanism of the regulation of bodily temperature. Much of this depends upon an equally delicate mechanism, the water balance of the body.

Of all the substances we take into our bodies, water is the one which remains the most stable. The amount of water in the tissues hardly varies as much as a drop. If it does, if the body becomes dehydrated from hot weather and too much perspiration, serious consequences follow.

As for getting too much water into the cells, that is almost impossible. Experiments have been made attempting it by drinking such large amounts of water as to amount to saturation so as to add to the water content of the tissues, but hardly as much as a teaspoonful could be added. But even then very serious symptoms amounting to shock occurred from that small an addition.

Many Functions

Water performs many functions though on its way through the body. We are conscious of perspiration in the summer time, but even on the coldest day we have some invisible perspiration occurring constantly, the evaporation of which helps to keep the body in temperature equilibrium. Water is used by the salivary glands and the mucous glands of the nose and mouth, to keep those cavities moist. Much of our hourly comfort depends on that.

And all along the digestive tract the same lubrication occurs. Any excess of water in the body is spilled over through the kidneys, taking with it some body heat which also helps temperature regulation.

The regulation of water balance is maintained so far as intake is concerned by the sensation of thirst. This is certainly one of the most sensitive functions of the body. It regulates minutely how much water is needed. Nobody knows where the center of the sensation of thirst lies, but it must be part of every body cell. If the day is cold and not much perspiration is needed to regulate temperature, a man of average weight will drink about a quart of water a day. It is reported by a medical officer of the British army that in India the average intake among men of a regiment is from 10 to 15 quarts a day.

Every Cell Needs It

Thirst arises from the need of every cell in the body, but the local site which causes the acute sensation is the mouth, and if the mouth is kept moist, no matter how much the cells need water, the sensation of thirst will be largely alleviated.

W. J. McGee, a geologist who has had wide experience in the desert region of the southwest, writes: "Thirst is commonly relieved by a moderate quantity of water; sometimes fruit acids and other acid substances exciting a flow of saliva are requisite for relief, and in the practical life of the range a pebble or a nail carried in the mouth is often efficacious."

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Water is good treatment for temperature disturbances. It can be used both externally and internally. A hot bath and a hot lemonade are the best treatment for exposure to cold and chill these winter evenings. Cold water internally and externally is splendid treatment for fever. Indeed, in the treatment of many diseases the use of water could well be exclusively depended upon.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Reader: "Could a person gaining weight possibly have tuberculosis?"

Answer—Certainly. It is a regular thing for patients under the rest treatment to gain fifteen or twenty pounds or more.

I. F.: "Is it possible for a person who has a calcium deficiency to go to the other extreme by taking an overdose of same in the various tablet forms? What is the best way to get sufficient calcium for a person other than the ordinary milk ration?"

Answer: According to Sherman ("The Chemistry of Food and Nutrition"), "The ordinary mixed diet of Americans and Europeans is probably more often deficient in calcium than in any other chemical element." In spite of this authoritative statement, there are few conditions in which calcium deficiency can be proved clinically, and 90 per cent of those occur in children (rickets) and nursing mothers. I know of no harm that excess of calcium can do. It can be taken in milk or in pure form—calcium carbonate—but is of little value if parathyroid deficiency exists. I think you need a doctor to straighten you out.

DEATH AT THE MANOR

BY M. E. CORNE

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

Elsie Ritter, a beauty shop operator, taking the place of a friend for a week in the private salon of Mrs. Horace Witherspoon, Sr., finds herself involved in a mystery when the eccentric old lady is found dead under one of the hair driers after Elsie had left the room for a few moments. She is further humiliated when she learns that one of the servants in the Manor's household suspects her of taking Mrs. Witherspoon's emeralds, which are missing. Certain members of the Witherspoon family and some of the house guests strike Elsie as queer, and she is surprised when the old lady's son, Horace Witherspoon, advises her to say nothing of the missing jewels for fear of publicity and the police. The coroner arrives for his investigation. Phil Benson, Elsie's friend and a reporter, comes for an obituary for his paper and Elsie shows him around the mansion. Mrs. Witherspoon's funeral is held the next day. Elsie is at her wit's end when Mrs. Horace Witherspoon, Jr., dies suddenly while under the same ill-fated drier in the salon the next morning. The police arrive and launch an investigation. The coroner pronounces the second death a case of murder and says he suspects poison. The chief of police threatens to arrest Elsie when she cannot explain the disappearance of old Mrs. Witherspoon's jewels. Then Phil Benson arrives.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER NINETEEN

"WHAT'S THIS all about?" Phil demanded of Chief Ellis. "You don't seriously suspect Elsie, do you?"

"She's mixed up in the murder," Chief Ellis insisted. "She has a lot of explaining to do."

"Don't listen to him!" I dried my tears. "I'll tell you everything!" And I repeated my story of the morning's events. When I had finished I felt much better. It was up up to Phil now, and he was a darned sight smarter than the whole Lawnville police force. That I knew!

"You don't think I did it, do you?" I demanded as he remained silent.

"No. No, of course not. But surely you see, darling, that it does look bad for you. Plenty bad! We must find out who did poison Mrs. Horace and who did steal the emeralds or"—he paused, and my heart slid to the bottom of my boots—"never mind," and he smiled and squeezed my hand, "we'll find out some way."

"I'll find out," Chief Ellis corrected. "You leave things to me."

"That's just what I'm going to do." Phil cracked the palms of his hands together. "I'm going to get Mac McIntyre out here!"

"Mac McIntyre!" I echoed. "Who is he?"

"Never mind!" Phil was leafing through the phone book. "What th' hell is his number?"

"Listen here, Benson!" The chief of police sounded perturbed. "There's no need to call McIntyre in on this!"

But Phil was not listening. He was talking eagerly into the mouthpiece of the telephone.

"He's coming right out!" he shouted presently, banging the receiver. "And, baby, that's a break! Mac will get to the bottom of things in no time."

"But who is he?" I persisted. "I never heard of him."

"Who is he?" Phil laughed excitedly. "He's a hometown lad who made good in the big city! Head of the Chicago homicide squad!"

"Is he in Chicago now?"

"Hardly. He's right downtown at the hotel. Got shot up in some gangster affair a month or so ago, and he's back in Lawnville to recuperate. But give a fire horse the smell of the hose and he'll come running. He jumped at the chance to get in on this business."

Chief Ellis objected: "You have no authority to call him in on this case! I'm chief of police in this town."

"Don't be that way, Ellis," Phil chided him. "He's not going to usurp your authority. Besides, Elsie is entitled to hire herself a private detective if she wants to."

I protested: "I can't afford a private detective."

"You can't afford to go to jail! Don't worry, sugar, just leave things to me."

"All right," I said. Leaving things to him suited me perfectly.

"You two come with me," Ellis ordered. "I'm going to question the others and I want you with me."

"O. K." Phil lighted a cigaret. "Lead on!"

The drawing room was the size of the library, although much lighter and brighter. The furnishings were formal. Gilt tables and chairs and stiff settees covered with cloth of gold. Dull saffron drapes caught the sun's rays and diffused a pale, golden light throughout the room. Paintings hung upon the walls; a floor-to-ceiling mirror embellished with fat, gilt cupids reflected the scene.

"I'm going to ask each of you where you were at the time of the crime," Ellis said, walking to the center of the room. "I know," he added, as a murmur of protest arose from his listeners, "I know none of you were in the salon between eleven and eleven-fifteen, but I want to know where else you were. Now we'll start and go around the room."

"Where were you, Mr. Witherspoon, during those fifteen minutes?"

"I spent the entire morning in the library," Mr. Horace replied, quietly.

"Did anyone see you there?"

"No; I was quite alone."

"Do you have any idea who murdered your wife??

"I have not." And I admired the manner in which he received that brutal question without flinching.

"She had no enemies?"

"I can't think so; she was well liked by all."

"Do you think she committed suicide?"

"I don't know! I don't know." The little man held his body rigid. "I had rather believe that she killed herself than that she was murdered."

"Did she ever to your knowledge threaten to kill herself?"

"No. No! But she was easily depressed and subject to spells of melancholia."

I sat up. The suicide angle dumfounded me! I had never thought of suicide and yet—yet it was possible! "Mother did not kill herself!" cried Daphne, her eyes bright pools of horror. "She couldn't bear to think of death. It frightened her horribly!"

"Is that so?" Chief Ellis stared at her. "What do you know about this business, Miss Witherspoon?"

"I?" She bit her underlip as the color drained slowly from her face. "I know nothing about it," she stated clearly.

"Yet you were the only person to visit the salon while your mother was there?"

For no reason at all, perhaps because I was watching her so closely, I did not shift my gaze from the girl to the boy. And because of this I saw something which the others missed.

I saw her remember some one thing to which, until that moment, she had attached no significance, or had completely forgotten. "Well?" Ellis returned to her.

"I'm afraid I missed the question," she said with apparent indifference, but her hands in her lap were clenched and interlocked.

"I asked whether anyone else in the house knew of the permanent," he repeated, frowning as if he were not greatly pleased at the way thing were shaping—or not shaping.

"Why—why—I wasn't paying much attention."

Chief Ellis would not be evaded. He demanded: "Did Miss Witherspoon say anything that might lead you to think she had persuaded her mother to have a permanent?"

"Well"—I tried to swallow and choked—"she did say so, yes."

"What was it she said?"

"That she had been trying for a long time to persuade her mother to have a wave."

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . Hour by Hour

PAGES from the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up in time to see a gorgeous sunrise and wondering why it is that as one grows older one needs much less morning sleep. I remember that as a kid it seemed as though I never could sleep long enough in the morning and, if permitted to do so, remained abed until noon. Now, that would be a real task, sleeping that long. Maybe we older ones can not sleep because nature is telling us that we had better be up and kicking around while we can.

And getting up reminds me of an incident of a farmer and an alarm clock, noted the other day. The farmer had bought an alarm, but had brought it back. "I don't want this thing," he declared. "It just tinkles a little bit and then chimes. I want something that will get me out of bed." He insisted on hearing the bells of every clock in the place. Finally, the clerk touched off one that sounded like a four alarm fire notice. A smile broke over the farmer's face and he said: "That's it. That's the one I want." Why, that clock would not only wake me; it would practically throw me down stairs. I wouldn't want the thing anywhere in my neighborhood, but it is what the farmer wanted. Probably if I had to get up as early as that farmer I would need an alarm like that, too.

50 Attend Garden Club Meeting at Hulse Home

Trees Subject Of Visiting Speaker

Mrs. Alice Steward of the Pleasantville Garden Club was guest speaker at the January meeting of the Pickaway County Garden club, Friday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Smith Hulse, Jackson township. About 50 members and guests were entertained.

The hosts served a chicken dinner at 6:30 o'clock after which the meeting was called to order by Mrs. Clark Hunsicker, president. Mrs. G. G. Campbell read the minutes of the last meeting and Mrs. Donald H. Watt, treasurer, read her report, both being approved. Forty members responded to roll call.

Mrs. Hunsicker presented Mrs. M. E. Noggle, who read the poem, "Trees", for the first number on the program, which was devoted to that subject.

Mrs. F. K. Blair introduced Mrs. Steward, who had as her topic, "Trees". She stressed the problem of cutting down the forest trees for the use of pulp. She spoke especially of some of the finer varieties, and predicted that these would soon be gone. In connection with her subject she mentioned the recent talk on the radio, when it was told that the Sequoia Indians treasured and cared for trees even before the coming of the white race to this country. She spoke of the different forests, one in particular, Mt. Olympia forest on the West coast, which it is estimated has 750,000,000 board feet of Douglas fir; 282,000,000 board feet of Sitka pine; 400,000,000 board feet of Washington juniper.

She explained the difference in the so-called National Forests and National Parks, saying that the parks cannot be sold or disturbed except by act of congress, but that the forests can be transferred to private concerns. She urged the members of the audience to use their votes to prevent the ruin of these forests.

Mrs. Balir conducted a tree contest, the prizes, which were pictures of Logan Elm, being won by Miss Mary Wilder and C. K. Hunsicker.

In addition to Mrs. Steward of Pleasantville, other guests from a distance were Mrs. H. M. Leitnaker of Lancaster Garden club; Mrs. J. B. Johnson and Mrs. May Bazore of the Deercreek Garden club, Williamsport.

Mr. and Mrs. Hulse were assisted in entertaining by Mr. and Mrs. Noggle, Mrs. Charles Pugsley and Mrs. Clarence McAbee.

STARS SAY—

For Saturday, January 7

THIS MAY prove to be a day in which to "cash in" on much previous effort or meritorious performance, judging by the lunar transits. It is propitious for reaping after much diligent and efficient work, although there may be sudden change of plans or even environs or backers. It would be well to defer these rearrangements and to pursue objectives on lines already proving sound and practical.

Those whose birthday it is are to have the opportunity for making good or profiting from past performances of merit and practically. Industry, fidelity and steadfastness, as well as ability, are to enlist ready support for promotion of worthwhile projects. However, there may be lures to change one's place or plans. Hasty decisions in this connection are hazardous.

A child born on this day may be steady, persistent, industrious and dependable, although at times it may exhibit traits seemingly changeable and erratic. These may be attributable to the "eccentricities of genius". However, its worthy ambitions should be fulfilled.

For Sunday, January 8

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds excellent promise for advancement and definite progress in all affairs pertaining to intelectual, cultural and spiritual programs and aspirations. It is a time to concentrate on these with force and resolution, although not with over-strenuous or too zealous methods. Impetuosity, rashness, disputes and tumult may nullify sound efforts. Travel is gainful.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of much liveliness and enterprise in business, especially that concerned with writings, publishings, promotions and advertising. However, such application, if carried to excess by overstrenuous or agitated measures, may prove a handicap. Beware of turbulence, strife, contention and any sort of overindulgence. Travel may be profitable. Use tact rather than force issues.

A child born on this day may be extremely versatile and clever, possibly to the point of spectacular brilliance, particularly with tongue or pen. Its ardor and enthusiasm may carry it to rather perilous or inharmonious expression, or to exaggerated dramatic heights.

JOANNE CONYERS ENROLLS IN LHS

Tuesday, when C. H. S. pupils resumed their studies they missed an old friend. This friend, Joanne Conyers, (usually known as "Jo") was a pupil of Circleville high until she moved to Lancaster where she has enrolled at Lancaster high school.

Last year she was awarded a letter for her achievements as a member of the varsity debate squad.

We all miss you, "Jo", and regret that it was necessary for you to leave us. However, we wish you every happiness and much success in your adopted school.

EDITORIAL METHODS

One of the most trying courses for a student of education is the one bearing the title, "Methods." The name has a somewhat stodgy and uninteresting ring; the lectures are not very stimulating, but the net results are far-reaching. For it is a well-known fact that no one can be successful in his work unless he organizes it.

It is this plan of organization which I should like to present to you as a habit worthy of cultivation. There are many reasons for having a planned program and carrying it through hot completion I do not mean that one should never deviate his plan; rather, that one should use method as a means toward complishing something.

Starting each day with some definite objective is a good habit—one which famous and notable persons have long made their rule. Great statesman, writers, actors, musicians budget their time so that their work need not be hurried, that there may be time for preparation, for appointments, for the work to be done. Most of them also try to reserve periods of rest and relaxation, so important for physical and mental development.

Even the most unobservant student would be aware of something amiss if his teachers came to work with nothing planned for the class. However, these same students never seem to profit by this example. It is method, system, or planning which keeps the school machinery in motion; method will keep the machinery of learning in motion if it is used.

I have always been of the opinion that teaching people to finish work begun is one of the most important tasks of education. Students should take the responsibility of planning their work, their leisure, their exercise, so that work may not meet too many obstacles. Work, you will discover, can be a pleasurable activity if it is planned and executed without the loss of calm, dignity, and harmony. For there can be no doubt about this—that the person who hops from one task to another giving little time to any one can accomplish little; nor is he a person to be admired with his worried expression, disshelved appearance, and snappish disposition.

I give you as a New Year's resolution this one: "I will chart my course, prepare for voyage, and set sail with determination."

—Margaret Rooney

C. H. S. DEBATERS TO MEET WEST

In preparation for the on-coming debate season Samuel R. Johnson, supervisor of debating and dramatics, announced this week that a date has been set for practice debate with West High of Columbus.

Next Wednesday the negative team from West will journey to Circleville to meet Circleville's affirmative team. These teams will debate on the high school debate question and will be allowed constructive speeches of twelve minutes each. Circleville's affirmative team is composed of Alyce Brown, and Eugene Dewey. The club has held meetings every fifth and seventh period through the week. A special meeting was conducted Tuesday evening at 6:30 to hear speeches prepared by members of the club for this practice debate.

Sometime in the near future (a date has not been set) Circleville's negative team, Warren Bumgarner and Bernice Strawser will meet the affirmative of West high school at West in Columbus. This is the second real practice the debaters have experienced this year. The first practice debate was between members of the club and was presented in assembly, Wednesday, November 23.

"Resolved, that the United States should establish an Alliance with Great Britain" is the national high school debate question.

WORLD HISTORY PUPILS PUBLISH "ROMAN EAGLES"

As a climax to their study of ancient Roman history the three world history classes have edited newspapers presenting events which would have interested the Roman populace about 50 B. C.

In each class Miss Rosemary Jackson, history teacher, appointed an editor and assistant editor who were responsible for publishing the papers. In the first period class Sam Stubbs, was elected editor and Leland Slegwald, his assistant; Rose Anne Griner, editor and Paul Turner, her assistant in the third period class; and in the eighth period class Pollyanna Friedman, editor, and Charles Mumaw, her assistant.

The different classes contributed articles written about Caesar, elections of new governors, chariot races, exile of famous men from Rome, the burning of Rome, and other topics that were characteristic of that period in history. The best of these were selected and printed in one of the three newspapers.

50 Attend Garden Club Meeting at Hulse Home

Trees Subject Of Visiting Speaker

Mrs. Alice Steward of the Pleasantville Garden Club was guest speaker at the January meeting of the Pickaway County Garden club, Friday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Smith Hulse, Jackson township. About 50 members and guests were entertained.

The hosts served a chicken dinner at 6:30 o'clock after which the meeting was called to order by Mrs. Clark Hunsicker, president. Mrs. G. G. Campbell read the minutes of the last meeting and Mrs. Donald H. Watt, treasurer, read her report, both being approved. Forty members responded to roll call.

Mrs. Hunsicker presented Mrs. M. E. Noggle, who read the poem, "Trees", for the first number on the program, which was devoted to that subject.

Mrs. F. K. Blair introduced Mrs. Steward, who had as her topic, "Trees". She stressed the problem of cutting down the forest trees for the use of pulp. She spoke especially of some of the finer varieties, and predicted that these would soon be gone. In connection with her subject she mentioned the recent talk on the radio, when it was told that the Sequoia Indians treasured and cared for trees even before the coming of the white race to this country. She spoke of the different forests, one in particular, Mt. Olympia forest on the West coast, which it is estimated has 750,000,000 board feet of Douglas fir; 282,000,000 board feet of Sitka pine; 400,000,000 board feet of Washington juniper.

She explained the difference in the so-called National Forests and National Parks, saying that the parks cannot be sold or disturbed except by act of congress, but that the forests can be transferred to private concerns. She urged the members of the audience to use their votes to prevent the ruin of these forests.

Mrs. Balir conducted a tree contest, the prizes, which were pictures of Logan Elm, being won by Miss Mary Wilder and C. K. Hunsicker.

In addition to Mrs. Steward of Pleasantville, other guests from a distance were Mrs. H. M. Leitnaker of Lancaster Garden club; Mrs. J. B. Johnson and Mrs. May Bazore of the Deercreek Garden club, Williamsport.

Mr. and Mrs. Hulse were assisted in entertaining by Mr. and Mrs. Noggle, Mrs. Charles Pugsley and Mrs. Clarence McAbee.

STARS SAY—

For Saturday, January 7

THIS MAY prove to be a day in which to "cash in" on much previous effort or meritorious performance, judging by the lunar transits. It is propitious for reaping after much diligent and efficient work, although there may be sudden change of plans or even environs or backers. It would be well to defer these rearrangements and to pursue objectives on lines already proving sound and practical.

Those whose birthday it is are to have the opportunity for making good or profiting from past performances of merit and practically. Industry, fidelity and steadfastness, as well as ability, are to enlist ready support for promotion of worthwhile projects. However, there may be lures to change one's place or plans. Hasty decisions in this connection are hazardous.

A child born on this day may be steady, persistent, industrious and dependable, although at times it may exhibit traits seemingly changeable and erratic. These may be attributable to the "eccentricities of genius". However, its worthy ambitions should be fulfilled.

For Sunday, January 8

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds excellent promise for advancement and definite progress in all affairs pertaining to intelectual, cultural and spiritual programs and aspirations. It is a time to concentrate on these with force and resolution, although not with over-strenuous or too zealous methods. Impetuosity, rashness, disputes and tumult may nullify sound efforts. Travel is gainful.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of much liveliness and enterprise in business, especially that concerned with writings, publishings, promotions and advertising. However, such application, if carried to excess by overstrenuous or agitated measures, may prove a handicap. Beware of turbulence, strife, contention and any sort of overindulgence. Travel may be profitable. Use tact rather than force issues.

A child born on this day may be extremely versatile and clever, possibly to the point of spectacular brilliance, particularly with tongue or pen. Its ardor and enthusiasm may carry it to rather perilous or inharmonious expression, or to exaggerated dramatic heights.

EDITORIAL METHODS

One of the most trying courses for a student of education is the one bearing the title, "Methods." The name has a somewhat stodgy and uninteresting ring; the lectures are not very stimulating, but the net results are far-reaching. For it is a well-known fact that no one can be successful in his work unless he organizes it.

It is this plan of organization which I should like to present to you as a habit worthy of cultivation. There are many reasons for having a planned program and carrying it through hot completion I do not mean that one should never deviate his plan; rather, that one should use method as a means toward complishing something.

Starting each day with some definite objective is a good habit—one which famous and notable persons have long made their rule. Great statesman, writers, actors, musicians budget their time so that their work need not be hurried, that there may be time for preparation, for appointments, for the work to be done. Most of them also try to reserve periods of rest and relaxation, so important for physical and mental development.

Even the most unobservant student would be aware of something amiss if his teachers came to work with nothing planned for the class. However, these same students never seem to profit by this example. It is method, system, or planning which keeps the school machinery in motion; method will keep the machinery of learning in motion if it is used.

I have always been of the opinion that teaching people to finish work begun is one of the most important tasks of education. Students should take the responsibility of planning their work, their leisure, their exercise, so that work may not meet too many obstacles. Work, you will discover, can be a pleasurable activity if it is planned and executed without the loss of calm, dignity, and harmony. For there can be no doubt about this—that the person who hops from one task to another giving little time to any one can accomplish little; nor is he a person to be admired with his worried expression, disshelved appearance, and snappish disposition.

I give you as a New Year's resolution this one: "I will chart my course, prepare for voyage, and set sail with determination."

—Margaret Rooney

WORLD HISTORY PUPILS PUBLISH "ROMAN EAGLES"

As a climax to their study of ancient Roman history the three world history classes have edited newspapers presenting events which would have interested the Roman populace about 50 B. C.

In each class Miss Rosemary Jackson, history teacher, appointed an editor and assistant editor who were responsible for publishing the papers. In the first period class Sam Stubbs, was elected editor and Leland Siegwald, his assistant; Rose Anne Griner, editor and Paul Turner, her assistant in the third period class; and in the eighth period class Pollyanna Friedman, editor, and Charles Mumaw, her assistant.

The managing editor to smooth things over, gets the ex-convict to go straight and prevents a holdup- of an armored bank truck. Robinson will be supported by Claire Trevor in the part of Lorelei, society reporter, and a selected group of players under the direction of Clark Andrews.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

A new Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy and a new warmth, color and comedy spirit in musicals makes itself manifest in "Sweethearts," fifth co-starring musical of the famous singing team, which opens Sunday at the Cliftona Theatre.

Technicolor has given both singers a more vivid personality, while the up-to-the-minute story devised for them by Dorothy Parker and Alan Campbell from the Victor Herbert operetta provides the stars with comedy characterizations which should win them legions of new followers.

In "Sweethearts" Miss MacDonald and Eddy portray two Broadway musical comedy stars who are husband and wife in private life. Their quarrels, temperamental outbursts and jealousies, together with their joint attempt to outwit a producer who wants to prevent them from accepting an offer from Hollywood, make for a comedy which is rich in laughter and at the same time replete with beautiful and original song and dance presentations.

AT THE CIRCLE

Everyone in the United States possessed of a radio has undoubtedly heard that big weekly broadcast called "Hollywood Hotel," supposedly originating from an immense and luxurious hostelry in the capital of Filmland, which has been the most popular air program for the last three years.

And now "Hollywood Hotel," in the form of a musical comedy, is coming to the Circle Theatre tomorrow as a presentation from Warner Bros. It is not merely an episode entertainment, like its namesake of the ether-waves, but a fully-plotted dramatic show with a star-studded cast.

Dick Powell has the most important part—that of a young crooner who comes to Hollywood with promises of a movie job, and gets into all sorts of difficulties before he wins success.

The Lane sisters, Lola and Rosemary, have the leading feminine roles, the former as a temperamental movie star who refuses to appear at a premier, and the latter as a totally obscure hotel worker who takes Lola's place on the big night.

"Love Life of Gorilla" to Be Shown

ARE APES people? You will be ready to admit Darwin was right when you see the gorillas in "Love Life of a Gorillas," which opens Monday, Jan. 9, at the Chakeres Grand theatre for a three day run.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

A new Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy and a new warmth, color and comedy spirit in musicals makes itself manifest in "Sweethearts," fifth co-starring musical of the famous singing team, which opens Sunday at the Cliftona Theatre.

Technicolor has given both singers a more vivid personality, while the up-to-the-minute story devised for them by Dorothy Parker and Alan Campbell from the Victor Herbert operetta provides the stars with comedy characterizations which should win them legions of new followers.

In "Sweethearts" Miss MacDonald and Eddy portray two Broadway musical comedy stars who are husband and wife in private life. Their quarrels, temperamental outbursts and jealousies, together with their joint attempt to outwit a producer who wants to prevent them from accepting an offer from Hollywood, make for a comedy which is rich in laughter and at the same time replete with beautiful and original song and dance presentations.

AT THE CIRCLE

Everyone in the United States possessed of a radio has undoubtedly heard that big weekly broadcast called "Hollywood Hotel," supposedly originating from an immense and luxurious hostelry in the capital of Filmland, which has been the most popular air program for the last three years.

And now "Hollywood Hotel," in the form of a musical comedy, is coming to the Circle Theatre tomorrow as a presentation from Warner Bros. It is not merely an episode entertainment, like its namesake of the ether-waves, but a fully-plotted dramatic show with a star-studded cast.

Dick Powell has the most important part—that of a young crooner who comes to Hollywood with promises of a movie job, and gets into all sorts of difficulties before he wins success.

The Lane sisters, Lola and Rosemary, have the leading feminine roles, the former as a temperamental movie star who refuses to appear at a premier, and the latter as a totally obscure hotel worker who takes Lola's place on the big night.

"Love Life of Gorilla" to Be Shown

ARE APES people? You will be ready to admit Darwin was right when you see the gorillas in "Love Life of a Gorillas," which opens Monday, Jan. 9, at the Chakeres Grand theatre for a three day run.

MOONEY READY TO LEAVE CELL

impeachment or recall movement against the governor."

In a letter sent to Olson, Lamborn wrote:

"I protest the proposed pardon of Mooney as unlawful, a direct affront to the supreme court of California, the supreme court of the United States, and a blot on the fair name of our beloved state."

During the prolonged Mooney-Billings fight for freedom, every court in the nation—from the superior court of California up to and including the United States supreme court — rejected the appeals of the two defendants. Besides, five California governors—before Olson—turned down pleas for pardons.

Billings Loses Twice

Billings, now in Folsom prison, cannot be pardoned by Olson without a recommendation from the state supreme court because he is a "two-time-loser." California law permits a governor to grant executive clemency only to persons never before convicted of a felony.

To obtain liberty for Billings, Mooney said, will be his No. 1 objective after getting his own pardon.

HEALTH LEAGUE VOICES FINAL APPEAL FOR FUND

The Pickaway county Public Health league appeals to all citizens who have not as yet paid for the Christmas seals sent through the mails to do so at once.

"The response to the seal sale campaign has been very gratifying, but every cent is needed in order to carry out the program planned for 1939," according to Elizabeth Dunlap, executive secretary.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

A SERIES OF SAFETIES

ONE SAFETY play after another is called for in the effort to make some contracts. As many as three or more may be required by thoroughly sound considerations. Several of them may prove not to have been necessary or even of any importance whatsoever. But some one or two of them may prove the deciding factor, meaning the difference between success of the entire enterprise or dismal overwhelming failure.

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

Playing in an Inter-Club Contract League championship tournament game in New York, Edgar F. Bloom of the Metropolitan Club gave on this deal an example of the kind of clear thinking which has caused him to become president of the great Western Electric Company. After bidding 1-Spade in the South, his partner's 2-Diamonds, followed by East's 2-Hearts, enabled him to call 2-No trump, which North raised to three.

West led the heart K in answer to his partner's bid. With this same lead at another table, South went down two. He took the first trick with the A, led to the diamond A, led the spade J, covered by the Q and A, took the spade 10 and K, led the diamond J, covered by the Q and K, led a club to the A, and East knocked out the heart Q. The club 10 finesse lost to West, who cashed the spade 8, led to East's diamond 10, and two hearts set the contract two.

Mr. Bloom, however, started playing safe by ducking the heart K lead, taking the next. The spade J, covered by the Q and A, was followed by a club to the K and A. The heart A was knocked out, spade 10 cashed, then a safe shift made to the club 10 finesse, which lost. West, with no spade yet set up, returned one to the A, whereupon Mr. Bloom ran two clubs and two diamonds for game, giving up a diamond at the end.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

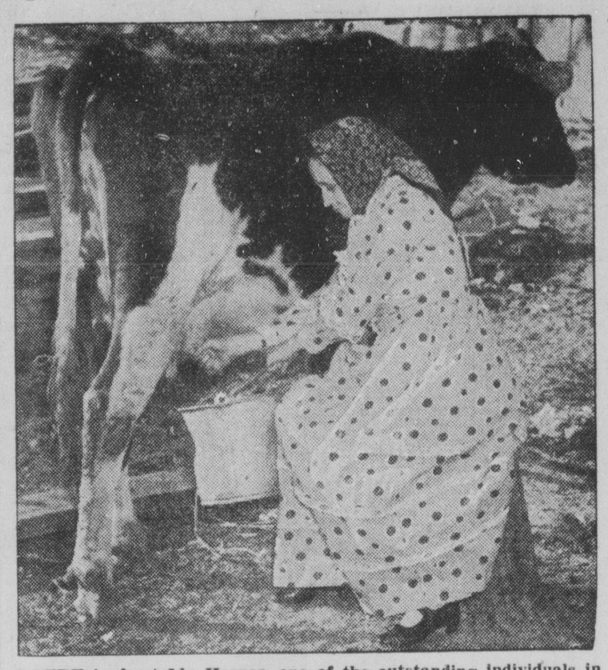

Against bidding of 2-No trump by South and 3-No trump by North, what should West lead?

UNION COUNTY SHERIFF FEARS MOB VIOLENCE

solved her from any suspicion in the crime.

"She and Hayes were true lovers," Roosa said. "Neither has had another date for five or six years. They were both deeply religious, almost to the fanatical stage."

Hayes was a grocery clerk in a Sumersville store as was Miss Morrow. He was delivering groceries on his isolated route when the crime occurred.

After he had been missing a few hours, a search was started. A hole in ice on the quarry led authorities to believe he might have met with foul play.

A diver was brought from Toledo. On the bottom of the muddy quarry. Hayes body was found tightly bound with copper wires. His hands were fastened to a limestone-loaded milk can. There was a bruise on his forehead.

A coroner's inquest brought out the horrible expression that the young clerk had been alive when placed in the quarry.

The official verdict "murder by drowning."

outer defenses—bases projected for the far Pacific, Alaska, Panama, the West Indies possessions and the Atlantic and Pacific coasts.

Woodring emphasized that it falls to the lot of the army to protect the navy's bases, wherever they may be, both air and water.

He declared that there is a broad misconception about bases, particularly air bases. Air bases, he pointed out, cannot be just one huge airdome where planes are concentrated. Under war conditions the planes and ammunition dumps for bombs must be scattered over a broad area of fifty or a hundred square miles or more, and must be protected by heavy concentrations of ground troops, artillery and anti-aircraft artillery throughout the area.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Tweezers are very convenient for removing pin feathers. Or you can "singe" them off by holding the fowl over a flame, turning it quickly to avoid scorching.

A housewife finds that by sprinkling a little cornmeal on the bottom of her pie tins before putting the lower crust in, she can keep her crust from getting soggy. A hot oven when the pie is first put in is usually a solution for sogginess, too.

impeachment or recall movement against the governor."

In a letter sent to Olson, Lamborn wrote:

"I protest the proposed pardon of Mooney as unlawful, a direct affront to the supreme court of California, the supreme court of the United States, and a blot on the fair name of our beloved state."

During the prolonged Mooney-Billings fight for freedom, every court in the nation—from the superior court of California up to and including the United States supreme court — rejected the appeals of the two defendants. Besides, five California governors—before Olson—turned down pleas for pardons.

Billings Loses Twice

Billings, now in Folsom prison, cannot be pardoned by Olson without a recommendation from the state supreme court because he is a "two-time-loser." California law permits a governor to grant executive clemency only to persons never before convicted of a felony.

To obtain liberty for Billings, Mooney said, will be his No. 1 objective after getting his own pardon.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

A SERIES OF SAFETIES

ONE SAFETY play after another is called for in the effort to make some contracts. As many as three or more may be required by thoroughly sound considerations. Several of them may prove not to have been necessary or even of any importance whatsoever. But some one or two of them may prove the deciding factor, meaning the difference between success of the entire enterprise or dismal overwhelming failure.

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

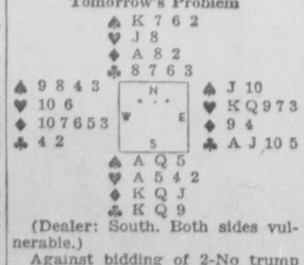

Playing in an Inter-Club Contract League championship tournament game in New York, Edgar F. Bloom of the Metropolitan Club gave on this deal an example of the kind of clear thinking which has caused him to become president of the great Western Electric Company. After bidding 1-Spade in the South, his partner's 2-Diamonds, followed by East's 2-Hearts, enabled him to call 2-No trump, which North raised to three.

West led the heart K in answer to his partner's bid. With this same lead at another table, South went down two. He took the first trick with the A, led to the diamond A, led the spade J, covered by the Q and A, took the spade 10 and K, led the diamond J, covered by the Q and K, led a club to the A, and East knocked out the heart Q. The club 10 finesse lost to West, who cashed the spade 8, led to East's diamond 10, and two hearts set the contract two.

Mr. Bloom, however, started playing safe by ducking the heart K lead, taking the next. The spade J, covered by the Q and A, was followed by a club to the K and A. The heart A was knocked out, spade 10 cashed, then a safe shift made to the club 10 finesse, which lost. West, with no spade yet set up, returned one to the A, whereupon Mr. Bloom ran two clubs and two diamonds for game, giving up a diamond at the end.

solved her from any suspicion in the crime.

"She and Hayes were true lovers," Roosa said. "Neither has had another date for five or six years. They were both deeply religious, almost to the fanatical stage."

Hayes was a grocery clerk in a Sumersville store as was Miss Morrow. He was delivering groceries on his isolated route when the crime occurred.

After he had been missing a few hours, a search was started. A hole in ice on the quarry led authorities to believe he might have met with foul play.

A diver was brought from Toledo. On the bottom of the muddy quarry. Hayes body was found tightly bound with copper wires. His hands were fastened to a limestone-loaded milk can. There was a bruise on his forehead.

A coroner's inquest brought out the horrible expression that the young clerk had been alive when placed in the quarry.

The official verdict "murder by drowning."
